Activist to head homeowner group

Olde Town activist George Roberts is the new president of the Olde Town-Meadowbrook Homeowners Association, formerly known as the Section 35 Homeowners Association in southeast Farmington Hills.

"We're going to try to restructure it to get it back to where it was nine to 10 years ago," said Roberts, a member of the Farmington Hills Housing Rehabilitation Loan Board.

Other officers elected were Floyd Dufresne, vice president; Mary Ann Dufresne, secretary; and board members, Dr. David Thompson, Carol Boyd and Mable Kurzeja.

The homeowners association will represent homeowners in Section 35 (extreme southeast square mile of the city), excluding residents living in the area known as Villa Capri, bounded by Inkster, Nine Mile, Shilawasee and Brandon, Roberts said. "But they are still welcome," he said.

The association intends to take stands on issues affecting the city but will not endorse political candidates, Roberts said.
