

New cable access committee officers named

Jeannie Liming has chaired the cable access committee for the 1988-89 programming year. We commend her and the committee for a fine job.

At the CAC meeting May 9, Larry Bohner, representative of Farmington Hills, was elected as '89-90 chairman. Warren Ledger was elected vice chairman. The committee will assume the position of secretary.

To the CAC's primary responsibility is to make recommendations on the development of programming on the public, education and government community access channels.

As we have just passed our community television five-year anniversary, the committee will be entrenched in the telecommunications pilot projects, proposals and plans to enhance diversity in video programming.

Bohner is a school teacher and has been active in our community television offering since 1983. He has been a local producer and talent as well as committee man, and is well-acquainted with the leased access portion of franchising.

Ledger was new to the committee last year. He is active in Novi, especially, with the community band. Ledger's forte is public relations and his interest in inspiring that community television becomes a household word. He has been active on our Channel 12 as host for several series.
