Woman is 2nd in hands-on contest

A 1934 Farmington High graduate finished runner-up in the third annual Hollywood Hands On Marathon, in which the person who keeps his or her hand on a brand-new Camaro the longest gets to take it home.

Deanna Woodruff, who graduated from Oakland Community College in 1986, received a queen-size water bed, a weekend at a resort, several dinners for two and bags and cream cheese for a year for her second place finish.

The contest took place in a tent at Jim Rathmann Chevrolet in Melbourne, Fla. Other co-sponsors were WMMY-FM Radio, Melbourne, and Universal Studios, Orlando.

The event was a fund-raiser for the Boys and Girls Club of South Brevard, Fla.

The contest ended after 163 hours and 50 minutes, the longest hands-on marathon the promoters could verify. The last two contestants were in such bad shape physically, promoters called it a tie and offered each $10,000, which they accepted. No one won the car, a 1988 Camaro OROC 2 Convertible, valued at $20,000.

COMPETITION BEGAN April 28 with 74 contestants. The object was to keep one hand on a Chevrolet Camaro at all times except during five-minute hourly breaks and 15 minutes of rest every six hours. No leaning was allowed, nor was touching another person.

Swollen legs, swollen ankles, boredom and delirium brought on from lack of sleep are what the four contestants, including Woodruff, shared two days before the contest ended.

During breaks, contestants caught catnaps, exercised or worked on improving circulation in their legs.

AT 4 P.M. May 5, Woodruff, an American Airlines clerk at the Melbourne Regional Airport, had 153 hours in when, in a daze, she started to walk away and took her hand off the car.

When it was over, she had no physical problems. She was glad no one won the car.

What prompted her to stand around for 45 hours with her left palm flat against the car's windshield?

"I want this car. That's the bottom line," the 23-year-old Satellite Beach resident and aerobics buff told a Florida Today newspaper reporter.

Event organizers arranged plenty of entertainment for passers-by and spectators, including several Universal Studios stunt shows.
