

Dance conference set for weekend

Detroit Dance Collective, in partnership with the Music Hall, will present, "We Dance in Michigan," a two-day conference on Friday and Saturday at the Music Hall, 350 Madison, Detroit.

The conference will showcase performances by six of Michigan's professional modern dance companies.

Made possible through a grant from the Community Foundation for Southeastern Michigan, the conference brings together professional artists along with regional and national representatives from arts, funding and presenting organizations. It is open to the public, and combines company performances with seminars covering timely issues related to dance.

The conference opens Friday with a reception. Liz Thompson, executive director of Jacob's Pillow and keynote speaker, will discuss current issues relating to the future of dance in the United States, its regional climate, and what to expect from funding organizations. On Friday evening the Detroit Dance Collective will be featured in a showcase performance at 8 p.m.

Saturday seminars and performance events run from 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. with features such as a master class with Peter Sparling, former member of the Martha Graham Dance Company and current chairman of the University of Michigan Dance Department, "brown-bag" lunch seminar with Judith Jamison, former principal dancer with Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater and founder of the Jamison Project; welfare seminar with performance medicine specialist, Dr. Sheldon Cohn and nutritional Karen Silverberg, covering such topics as AIDS, performance anxiety and nutrition; and a panel discussion on funding with respected representatives from government and foundations.

Performing companies showcased during the two-day conference are Detroit Dance Collective and Harbinger Dance Company, both from meiro Detroit; Ann Arbor Dance Works and People Dancing hitley Setrakian and Dancers from Ann Arbor; Happendance from Lansing; and Wellspring Dance Collaborative from Kalamazoo.

A pass for all events on Friday and Saturday is $55; Saturday only events, $45; one showcase performance, $7; participation in a master class, $10; and observation only in a master class, $7. For information call the Detroit Dance Collective at Oakland Community College 548-9664.

Artfest '89 opens

The Women's Advertising Club of Detroit will hold its second Artfest '89 6-9 p.m., Friday under tents on the grounds of WKYZ-TV Channel 7, 20777 W. 10 Mile, Southfield. Reservations can be made by calling screening, calligraphy and photography.

There will be an auction of works donated by artists Carl Owens of Detroit, Tom Cameron of Rochester and Louis and Revlon Shwayder Goffel of Franklin. Sony Elliot will be the auctioneer.

Artfest '89 focuses on the non-commercial side of the area's advertising talent and will include paintings, drawings, bibliography, sculpture, jewelry, weaving, silk-screening, calligraphy and photography.
