DIGITAL VIDEO

Farmington Hills-based Grace & Wild Studios has installed four Sony DVR-10 digital videotape recorders (DVTRs).

The D-2 format is cassette-based and uses 19mm metal tape to record digital video and four separate tracks of CD quality digital audio, making it the ideal format for post-production and archival use.

"These machines are a real break-through," said Keith Neft, vice presi-dent and general manager. "The DVTRs maintain pristine camera original quality while eliminating tape noise and dropout."

Humane Society offers hot-weather pet tips

The Michigan Humane Society offers some helpful tips for pet owners, during hot summer weath-
