Women, start your club

Dear Ms. Schilf,

I was extremely interested in the lifes from GD. regarding a club for vomen interested in the same activities. I've had a similar idea for a long time. There are organizations for widows, divorcete, seniors, but routing for women who are married with husbands not interested in some of their activities or husbands who work during specific times and are namble to participate.

I would love to cent of GD. to see what we could get started. I am attending a volunteer/social club for women in Jame, but the median age is about 30 and ir as, so I'll see.
Continued mecess with your interesting column. I really exply it.

Dear S.D.,
Thank you very much for your kind comments. I received one other response from a woman interested in a club for married women.
The pestition I have taken in the past is that I cannot be a dating service. That principle holds here. However, I hope that one of you where you have written me, showing interest in this type of club, will put an ad in the paper so that you can find each other. Your ideas are good.
Write to me and tell me how your endeavor works out. This information will help other women in your circumstances.

Dear J.H.,
Your awareness of the problem is a first and very important step in overcoming it. In studies cone on aging, there seems to be some correlation between being receptive to new ideas and longevity. Certainly, the quality of as persons life is enhanced by keeping an open middle. Possibly, you have had a parent with this trait and you have internalized it even though it hawards continued it even though it hawards continued it even though it hawards continued in even though the work of the continued in the continued
