

Farmington Is A Granny...

Daniels Den

By EMORY DANIELS

"If Farmington were a person, what kind of human being would it be?" That question was asked last semester by an English teacher at one of the Farmington high schools.

Purpose of the assignment was for students to personify their hometown with a brief but creative narrative.

THE ANSWERS are interesting because of the variety of descriptions given. It would be presumptuous on our part to either agree or disagree with the content because what is being expressed is individual feelings.

The students, grades 10 and 11, are not even attempting to portray a student viewpoint but are just expressing their feelings about Farmington.

The variance is just as wide, I suspect, as if the question were asked to the entire community. So if you don't agree with the student's description of "your" hometown, just remember there are about 40,000 persons in Farmington who wouldn't agree with yours.

A SOPHOMORE girl personifies Farmington as "a housewife who has everything she needs and is content with doing nothing of importance in her life. She

The brief description of a junior girl is that Farmington is "a little old lady with white hair with glasses, rocking in a rocking chair smoking a marijuana cigarette."

Another junior girl describes Farmington as "an elderly man with a wide variety of interests. Old and wrinkled on the outside, yet warm and friendly inside."

Another junior girl writes Farmington is "a granny in a rocking chair...old...but still moving."

A DIFFERENT description, by a junior girl is: "A short lady wearing expensive clothes, dirty underwear, gaudy jewelry - constantly smoking cigarettes."

A final description comes from a senior girl who sees Farmington as "a poor old farmer who's very religious."

If I were in that English class, my description would say: "Farmington is a type of a Jacob, wrestling with its own angel; trying to become what it ought to be but not yet totally committed to pay the fare to enter Canaan."

"This Jacob is still wrestling, hoping to get an armlock on reality and twist what is possible into the same shape of what is hoped for. I can see this Jacob making it because he's too proud to get whopped."

SHIAWASSEE EXPANDS - Ground was broken recently for an addition to Shiawassee Elementary School. Six classrooms and a media center will add 11,000 square feet to existing building space and provide much-needed expansion room for the Farmington school's population of 565. Taking part in the nippy ceremonies were: (from left) contractor Carl Tropp; Supt. Roderick J. Smith; Mrs. Verla Kennedy, school librarian; Mrs. Daisy Barber, resource center director; Fred Carne, architect; Harry Stultz, director of buildings and grounds; and Marvyn Van Arneyde, assistant superintendent. Ransom Attempt Fails

The wife and children of David Cushing were held at gunpoint for several hours Friday in the basement of their Farmington Township home.

A lone gunman held them in the basement of the home at 2341 Stockton, demanding $200,000 ransom from Cushing.

ing, an executive of Bank of the Commonwealth. Cushing wasn't home at the time.

Mrs. Cushing managed to escape and notify Farmington Township police. The assailant fled and at press time had not been apprehended. The family is safe.

*FBI officials arrived in the township Friday and have taken charge of the investigation. Early reports indicate the gunman had stolen a Consumers Power Co. service truck, removed the uniform from the driver at gunpoint and entered the Cushing residence under the guise of being a gas repairman.

4 Earn WSU Doctorates

FARMINGTON Four Farmington residents received doctorate degrees from Wayne State University at commencement exercises in Cobo Hall.

THE ED BENDA family are at it again...ski jumping that is.

Just before the holidays Mrs. Margaret Benda accompanied by Steve Marty, Jeff, Lynn and Carl drove to Iron Mountain in the Upper Peninsula and participated in a ski jumping school.

During the holidays the gang did a lot of skiing at the Kanabai Ski Club just outside Penton, then last week the five jumpers (Carl, Lynn, Steve, Marty and Jeff) participated in a ski jumping meet in Munising in the UP and came home with medals. Congratulations to all.

NOT ALL FOLKS go skiing. Some prefer the sunny south and 80 degree temperatures.

The Dave Thurston family of Peppermill went to Florida for two weeks. So did the Bull Ewell family. These two families live across the street from each other.

Sandy Kaweck of New Castle will Ring remember her holiday. She went with a
