'Coke' Gets A Changed Meaning

Questions should be sent to the Community Commission on Drug Abuse, P.O. Box 700, Livonia, Mich. 48151.

Q. You said in a recent column that coke and aspirin had no effect. I'm no expert, but I've heard that "coke" is a dangerous drug.

R.M., Westland

A. We goofed. "Coke" to most people means a soft drink. But it is also another name for cocaine, which must be what you're referring to. Yes, cocaine, alone or in any combination, is a dangerous drug.

It also is probably the most misunderstood drug of abuse; it deserves a column devoted to it soon. But for now, thanks for catching the discrepancy—it's good to know we're being read critically.

Q. There is a program for drug analysis through the police or some pharmacies in this area. Fine. But I've heard that using this program is a good way to get busted. What about it?

L.S., Livonia

A. We really appreciate your contacting us personally about this because we learned a lot too. It boils down to this:

- 1) The primary aim of the police is not "busting" the user, but rather the pusher.
- 2) This commission's main concern is in protecting you from some really dangerous junk that is being sold around here as a "safe trip."
- 3) It turns out that the source of this misinformation was the person who pushed the drugs on you. It's fairly obvious that he lied to protect himself.

Q. Is the Establishment ever going to accept marijuana? It's relatively safe substance that it is! I feel that this would help solve a lot of problems.

R.J., Redford

A. No, they aren't accepting it. It's such a turn. To be sure, marijuana has neither been fully proven to be "safe" or "not safe." It is suspected by many to be the kind of artificial high that temporarily helps people to escape from life's frustrations.

In addition, this feeling of escape gained from marijuana may soon decrease in its satisfaction and in many cases is "junked" for other sources of satisfaction that might include stronger drugs.

Q. Some of us students want to do what we can to help with the drug problem. We've seen some of our friends get burned pretty bad. Do you have to be an expert before anyone will let you help?

M.B., Livonia

A. Other young people around here feel the same way - at least many of them do. If you want to get connected with them call the commission at 261-DRUG.
