

'Teacher on TV' coming to local cable

The pilot project of "Teacher on TV" for Farmington schools becomes a real curriculum this September.

SWOCC approved the concept of a teacher for several classes simultaneously via cable. MetroVision has been working with Farmington schools telecommunication coordinator Dean Cobb throughout the 88-89 school year.

The first class will be German I, by instructor Maria Schneider. The class will originate at Harrison High School and be cablecast to North Farmington and Farmington high schools. The class will have two-way communication capabilities so students may interact with the instructor. The class will be held third hour, Monday through Friday.

A successful fall could bring more classes second semester. SWOCC has formed a technical subcommittee, which consists of SWOCC and MetroVision staff, CAC members and Novi and Farmington school district representatives. The committee is to study the breadth of opportunity and cost efficiency through activating the second cable. The second cable's original intent is for the use of institutions. The cable plant was built during the original build and continues to be built with the new plant. The bulk of the cost was born up front.

The committee philosophy is to look at projects with the ancillary costs ideally to be born by the "user" of the network and not by the general consumer.

"New Center 12" will host a cable segment each week where we will fill you in on the happenings. Producer Don Jaisinski has scheduled news for the following times on Channel 12 each week: Tuesday, 3:30 p.m.; Friday, 8:30 p.m.
