Kids' science camp set for holidays

The Living Science Foundation of Novi will hold a winter camp at Mystic Lake in northern Michigan over the holidays.

The camp, designed for youngsters ages 7 to 14, will feature microscopes, thermometers, telescopes, a portable planetarium and other tools of science.

Besides featuring ice skating, tobogganing and other winter fun, the camp will deal with questions like, "What are Owls eating?" or "What happened to the summer triangle and the Great Square of Pegasus?"

The camp is located at Mystic Lake between Clare and Ewart about three hours from the Detroit area.

Campers live in cozy cabins with nutritious family-style meals served at the Buckhorn Lodge.

The camp will run from noon on Wednesday, Dec. 27, through the morning of Saturday, Dec. 30. The cost is $160 per child. Transportation is extra.

Additional information can be obtained by writing the Living Science Foundation, 40400 Grand River Ave., Suite "F," Novi, 48050, or by calling 478-1999.
