Elderly can take steps against crime

Would you please give your readers some hints on protecting themselves against pickopecks and purs santchers? The elderly population are prime targets for this type of crime, I am sending you some literature that we distribute to our senior citizen centers—please pass it on to your (larger) readership.

Dear Sergeant H.:
Thank you for your letter and the internation — which I have edited.
Older people are more vulnerable to this type of crime because of the changes that go along with aging — decreased strength and slower reflexes — and because they often live in or frequent high population density areas.

Before leaving home, it is wise to plan where you'll be going and what in the line of eash and refult cards you'll need. Never carry more than the necessities.

Men should never carry their wallets in their back pants pocket. Pickpockets are so skilled that their victims seldom know that they have been robbed until it's too late.

Pockets are often picked during diversions. Pickpockets usually work in pairs, one bumps you and the pairs of the 'Women at the podium'

The Continuum Center of Oakland University will spansor a one-day workshop in help women develop public speaking skills. "Women at the Podium: Learning to Speak Up." will be held under the direction of communications special-ist Roberta "Jeff" Dailey from 9 ann. to 4 pm. on Friday, Peh. 9 at the Auburn Hills Signature Inn at of 1-75 and University Drive in Auburn Hills. The $85 fee includes lunch.

The workshop will cover mechan-ics like selecting a topic and gather-ing information, determining the segements of a speech and construc-tion of each part; assessing an audi-ence and using humor appropriately. It will also discuss voice projection, could be a selected as a second selection. verbal skills and conveying a point with confidence.

accomplice picks the pocket or runs off with a purse.

The safest place for men to carry their wallets is In their inside jacket pockets.

Purse snatchers usually come from behind, grab the purse and then run and disappear around a corner or into the crowd.

Some helpful hints to prevent purse snatching are:

• Carry your purse (latchside pressed tight to your body) with your arm through the handle or strap.

• Think "purse snatcher" when in a dense crowd and eat accordingly.

• Never leave your purse in an unattended shopping cart or on a counter.

Don't drape your purse over the back of your chair in a restaurant. Instead, place it on your lap or put it on the floor under the table.

When trying on clothes in a store, do not leave your purse or your valuables in the dressing room.
