City Earns National Beautifying Award

A distinguished achievement award has been given the City of Farmington for its entry in the 1970 National Clean Up Contest. Announcement of the honor was made this week by Richard H. Hackendahl, director of the National Clean Up Bureau in Washington, D.C.

THE AWARD honors achievements by the city, Hackendahl says, which indicates the residents' "deep concern about their community and their dedication to fighting the forces of filth and neglect which threaten our entire country."

City Manager John Dinan told this newspaper he is quite proud of this honor because this was the first time the City of Farmington Beautification

Committee entered the national competition.

The city entered a comprehensive scrapbook which was selected to receive the distinguished achievement award among some 400 cities which had entered the 25,000 and under population class.

The top 10 programs in this population class were declared national winners. The next best entries were awarded distinguished achievement awards and then honorable mentions were given.

IN RECOGNITION of Farmington's accomplishment, Hackendahl announces, a plaque will be presented to a city representative at an awards ceremony in Washington on Feb. 23.

Mrs. Richard Nixon will present the award to the city's representative at the banquet as well as to the other winners.

The Awards ceremony will climax a three-day National Clean Up Congress which will be attended by mayors, civic leaders and beautification workers from across the nation.

During the congress, the Farmington scrapbook will be on display. Panel discussions and seminars on community beautification projects will also be held.

The three population categories in the contest were: 25,000 and under; 25,000 to 250,000; and over 250,000.

DINAN SAID the scrapbook entered by the beautification committee covered two years of many projects and promotions to encourage beautification.

"The scrapbook alone is a tribute to the many hours of work turned in by this hard-working committee," says Dinan. "The award is but another testimonial to the excellent performance by this group of citizens."

The scrapbook divided the committee's work among the following areas of concentration: community-wide beautification; property improvements; youth activities; and miscellaneous.

Specific community-wide programs included in the entry were: suggestion boxes; tree planting program; program of studying areas in community to inspect weed problems, litter, etc.; Arbor Week celebrations including memorial tree for Dr. Russell Milligan; distribution of 400 marigold seed packets received from Rep. Jack McDonald (R-19th); Drake Road Park Project; serving on committee planning redevelopment of Central Business District; and Christmas Decor Contest.

Property improvement projects entered include: gas lamp program; maintenance and clean up of shopping centers; updating trash burning ordinance; "Light the Night" program including distribution of 9,000 brochures through elementary schools; sale of trash bags; distribution of wood chips.

Youth activity projects entered were: high school cleanup program where FHS students cleaned up city park; school district beautification month - by - month program for all teachers to use: May cleanup, fixup, paintup month including student poster contest; Youth Beautification Scroll in which 24 youth groups participated; psychedelic trash containers painted by Girl Scout Troop 414, a proposal initiated through the suggestion box.

Also: spring bulb planting by youth at schools, at home and at community sites; cleanup of city cemetery by 25 Junior High students; and volunteer cleaning bureau to assist senior citizens, shut-ins and the incapacitated to wash windows, rake leaves, weed, mow lawns and other duties.

Miscellaneous projects entered include: commendation letters being sent to those who beautify their property; joint work with Farmington Township Beautification Committee; hosting the quarterly luncheon for the Beautification Council of Southeastern Michigan attended by 160 persons and guest speaker Mrs. William Milliken, representative on Historical Preservation Committee; awards program during Michigan Week; and entry of a float in the Farmington Founders Festival parade.

Chairman of the city's beautification committee this year is Mrs. Noel Kurth. Chairman during the two years for the entry period was Mrs. Shirley Richardson.

The city council Monday night voted to send Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Kurth to the three-day congress and to accept the award from Mrs. Nixon.

Stewardess Saves Man's Life

By MARTHA MAHAN

An engraved plaque hanging on a wall in Chicago radiates a lot of pride and a lot of gratitude reaching all the way to Farmington and Southfield High School.

The pride is shared by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall of 27036 Echo Valley, their daughter, Judy, 22, and United Airlines where Judy works as a stewardess.

THE GRATITUDE belongs to the anonymous young man whose life Judy narrowly saved.

"We're mighty proud of her," conceded her father, who is principal of Southfield High School. "It sure makes a parent feel good to know he has done a good job."

United Airlines showed its appreciation of Judy's worth by presenting her with an award of merit, the plaque and a $50 check at a special surprise ceremony. Judy was one of only dozen stewardesses cited for outstanding performance last year.

Her elated father tells the story this way:

JUDY, on a Chicago-Atlanta flight, was preparing to serve dinner and tried to attract passenger she thought was sleeping. But he failed to respond.

Judy, with two years of nurse's training at Eastern Michigan University and Henry Ford Community College, examined the young man and decided he either was in shock or in a coma or had suffered a heart attack.

She dispatched another stewardess for oxygen and began loosening his shirt and tie to begin administering artificial respiration when she discovered a chain on his neck with a tag identifying him as a diabetic.

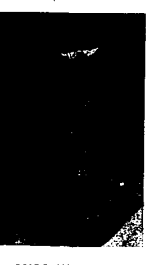

Judy, again calling on her nurse's training, managed to get a chocolate bar down his throat, then notified the pilot of the emergency. He radioed ahead for an ambulance, then made an early landing.

Judy remained with her patient, going with him to the hospital in the ambulance.

A graduate of North Farmington High School, Judy was both surprised and happy about the airlines citation.

"I thought she really wanted to be a nurse when she went into training," her father said, "but apparently she intended to be a stewardess all the time. She has always liked to travel."

Environmentalist Is Evangelizing

Nancy Sheehan of 27930 Parkhill Dr., Farmington, is hoping to organize a local environmental action group to "evangelize like crazy."

She envisions a group of concerned residents meeting once a week for an hour or so to plan action, report progress or "just learn from each other."

Other possible activities she envisions are to inventory detergents and beverages at supermarkets and urge operators to stock non-pollutants.

HOPEFULLY, she adds, the group will function also as data collectors and become prolific enough to circulate a weekly newsletter.

The action group has temporarily been dubbed "Earth Alive," and its purpose is to inform members on how NOT to pollute by learning to shun disposables, phosphates and DDT and to use less water and electricity.

"We'll learn, in other words, to use things out of need, to use them responsibly and to reuse them."

"We can clean up the mess we have. We can reuse on a large scale, collecting the throwaway glass containers and old newspapers for recycling and can run pickup crud campaigns."

"AS A GROUP, we can certainly put a bigger bug on business and government."

"We can aim phone calls and mailings on specific issues at public officials on all levels of government and can confront abusers and foot-draggers in industry and the market-place."
