

Licad's artistry soars beyond ethnic lines

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

The combination of ethnic pride and rich, artistic heritage can be powerful. Art can be nourished and thrive on rich, ethnic heritage and at the same time, it can soar above ethnic and national boundaries with a universal message.

This was the case with the piano recital of Cecil Licad, given at Ford Auditorium last week. It was sponsored by the Philippine Medical Association of Michigan and drew a significant audience, mostly from the Filipino community.

Licad was born in the Philippines and came to this country at an early age to study at prestigious institutions. She is one of those artists whose presence makes a difference in a world of many technical acrobats and far fewer refined artists.

One can't help being impressed with her artistic creativity even if one doesn't always agree with her approach.

Her program consisted of Beethoven's Sonata No. 8 in C Minor - "Pathétique," "Gaspard de la Nuit" by Ravel and Schubert's Carnaval. Of these, "Pathétique" is probably the most popular, with its second movement serving as the theme for the syndicated radio program "Adventures in Good Music."

Licad's approval was decidedly different from most standard approaches. She gave it a tender, relaxed and extremely introverted interpretation. The passages in the fast movements flowed almost effortlessly, but with a shade of turbulence undercurrent.

I would have preferred more Beethoven flesh and blood in this work, with a little more stylistic intensity. But there was an undeniable sense of integrity in this approach.

Some of this pianissimo extended into Ravel's challenging work. Only in the "Scarbo" portion one could feel some more solid ground, allowing for more pronounced intensity.

Lyric Chamber Ensemble performs an All-Mozart concert
