

Cable access team picks officers for 1990-91

The Cable Access Committee has held its annual election of officers. Mark Adler of Novi will be the 1990-91 chairman. Pat Isham of Farmington Hills will be the vice chairman. The secretarial position will rotate among the nine committee members alphabetically.

The committee would like to thank the previous chairman, Larry Bohner, for hosting a fine year in community television. The Cable Access Committee purpose is to develop plans and policies of which to recommend to the Southwestern Oakland Cable Commission.

The Southwestern Oakland Cable Commission, under the guidance of chairman William Hartsock of Farmington, elected a new vice chair and secretary. The vice chair is Joseph Toth of Novi and the secretary of the commission is Edward Kriewall of Novi.

The cable commission looks forward to an exciting year in community television as they renovate a Farmington Hills Fire Station into a Community-Government Access Television Studio. MetroVision is contributing to the process as well.

We look forward to an increase in resident television involvement as everyone recognizes the tremendous impact the community channels makes in helping each of us know what is going on. TV for the People By The People.
