Start a business with great care

Q: I have an idea for a new beainess that I'm sure would be successful. I've done all the research and mecunized it would be a good thing to do, yet I can't seem to get started. Why would a person delay such a good thing?

A: Any of a host of reasons may be holding you back. I can only guess at yours. Fear of failure or success are two of the most common reasons for Although you seem sure the business would be financially profitable, you may not be convinced of your personal ability to handle it. Don't, therefore, discount fear of failure as a factor. Taking a merchandising or other appropriate class might ovecome a lack of knowledge.

Fear of success can be more diffi-cult to understand. Perhaps you can imagine yourself rising to only a cer-tain level in life.

If your business venture became wildly successful, would that place you above, and, therefore, out of your comfort zone? Mike Todd once said, "If you make a million dollars and lose it, you can do it again." Changing your perception of your status in life may be helpful.

Talking with others who have started businesses can also soothe your fears. Two people currently taking risk are Gayle Gardner and Paula Rand of Ann Arbor. They tuned into two factors: 1) People spend prolonged periods recuperating in hospitals with nothing to do. 2) Thousands of audiotapes are pur-away.

They have, therefore, founded Companion Cassettes Inc., an audiotape rental and sales business run through hospital gift abops to help patients pass long idle days and weeks. Every type of cassette is available — books on tape, motivational, educational, etc. Tape players can also be rented.

Gardner, a registered nurse, and Rand, a corporate librarian, were both scared and excited about their new venture when I met them last week at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Ann Arbor.

"We're taking a real risk," they said as they laughed heartily but nervously. "Some of our friends think we are crazy. But we're convinced there's a real need for this."

They hope to expand into the corporate world next, so that traveling business people can rent their tapes and return them in mailers. Companion Cassettes can be reached at 683-6919 or 994-1511.

I would encourage you to ask yourself, "What is the worst thing that can happen if I start this busi-ness?"

Visualizing worst-case scenarios and then dealing with those fears is an effective way to remove mental roadblocks. Good luck.

You can still enroll in Organiz-ing classes at Schoolcraft College 462-4448, or at the newly expand-ed Birmingham Community House 644-5832.
