A 'Dickens' of good time along Holly's Battle Alley

By Phyllis Kreger Stillman special writer

"Roasted chestnuts! Get your hot roasted chestnuts here,

"Hot cider! Warm your hands on a cup of hot cider!"

on a cup of not cider?

Dity faced merchants hawking, their wares from outdoor booths on a cold December day, wearing their wares from outdoor booths on a cold December day, wearing facikers and forn gloves freet people entertaining the crowds then passing the hat. Sleigh rides behind horses, lingling with bells. The little pedestrian alley looks and sounds like a scene from a Dickens novel. You might even expect to see Scrooge walking purposefully to work, scornfully eyeing Christmas decorations and chiding holiday shoopers.

In Holly's Battle Alley that's exactly what you'll see, but watch out, Scrooge doesn't take kindiy to folks who aren't working, and he's not atraid to tell them so?

Olist who aren't working, and he's not atraid to tell them so?

Olist who aren't working, and he's not atraid to tell them so?

Olist who aren't working, and he's not atraid to tell them so?

Olist who aren't working a hat working and he's not atraid to tell them so?

Olist who aren't working a hat be contrained to tell them so?

Olist who aren't working a hat be contrained to tell them so?

Olist who aren't working a hat be contrained to tell them so?

Olist who aren't working a hat be contrained to the little town. With a downtown which boasts Victorian storefronts, Holly is a natural for the Dickens Olde Fashioned Christmas Festival. Johing, Scrooge are other-characters—the Christmas Chosts, Bob Cratchit, Tiny Tim and Old Marley—in tales of a Dickers Christmas.

MOST OF THE activities center around Battle Alley, which was originally known as Martha Street. In the early 1909, Martha Street was lined with bars and taverns, thely was a rallroad town in those days, with two different lines running through the village.

Railroad workers would visit the taverns on Martha Street Later, when spirits were high, fights would break out between groups from the two railroads. After a particularly raucous brawl, Martha Street became Battle Alley.

Now Battle Alley is home to all kinds of shops, selling romantic Victorian merchandise, antiques and gifts.

During the Dickens Festival, the MOST OF THE activities center and gifts.

During the Dickens Festival, the alloy is also crowded with outdoor merchants. Many provide food baked potatoes with all the trimmings, chargrilled sausage sandwiches, bot cider, funnel cakes, spiced almonds and, of course, reasted chesturis.

er sells handmade dolls.

The already festive atmosphere is enlivened more by all sorts of entertainment. There is a family of jugglers — a father and his two sons, who juggle a flaming torch, a fry pan and an egg. cooking the egg in the pan over the torch as a finale.

THERE IS A sword swallower, and you can stand up close while he swallows the forch and watch him stringly not to gag. There's also a myriad of choirs and carolers, and over a brass bind.

One of the most outstanding acts in Battle Alley this year is the linguistic Thatl troupe.—Gideon quist and Mrs. Serphingle. They snare hapless shopper Julo helping them with a 'warrely of conned stills throughout the day. In one, Mrs. Feerphingle cleaches manners to an impatient dragon. In another, greedy pirates sing about their exploits.

If you get hungry during the fees process praces and according the fea-tival—in between your baked po-tato and funnel cake—the Holly Hotel is open for lunch and dinner. One of the cornerstones of Battle Alley, the hotel was originally built in 1891.

The structured has weathered several fires; reopening in 1980 af-ter the last one as a restaurant only. The setting is clearly Victori-an with lace curtains, stained glass in the windows, old-fashioned mir-rors and prints and an axminster carpet.

rors and prints and an axminster carpet.

The menu features many creative offerings — dishes like chicken strudel at lunch and roast lingoberry duck at dinner. The surroundings are beautiful, the service is pleasant, if somewhat stow, and the food is very good. Reservations are suggested during the featival. Call (313) 634-5208.

HOLLY RESIDENTS seem to enjoy the festival, which is in its 17th year, as much as the visitors. Volunteers serve as the Dickens Volunteers serve, as the Dickens characters and provide much of the entertainment, and most of the booths are manned by people from the area.

The whole town celebrates, decorated with simple, old-fashloned garlands and bows. Local people just seem to want to be there. Eve Dennison used to own one of the shops in Battle Alley, She's retired now, but has a booth during the Dickens Festival.

"I just love the festival," she said. "We're trying to give the impression of an old market where vendors shout and barter their

They have hit that goal and sur-passed it, creating for visitors just a wee bit of merry olde England and a lot of hollday fun.

and a lot of noliday ten.

The Dickens Olde Fashioned Festival continues on weekends until Christmas. The final weekend, which extends through Monday,
Dec. 24, will be Father Christmas
Weekend. Father Christmas
Weekend. Father Christmas
dressed in traditional green instead of the more modern red, will hand out eits.

Call the Holly Chamber of Com-merce at (313) 634-1900 for more information.

Photos by PHYLLIS KREGER STILLMAN

Jugglers James (left) and Paul Spitzer entertain the crowds in the tradition of Charles Dickens at Holly's Dickens Festival, Dressed in 18th century clothing, carolers strike a "God Rest Ye Merry, Gentlemen" pose while singing.

Wearing a fur-trimmed green cape and a wreath made of holly, Dick-ens' Ghost of Christmas Present mingles with visitors to Holly's Bat-

Undoing a tattoo is a pain

Continued from Page 1

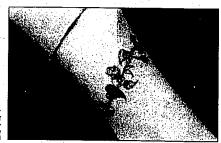

Continued from Page 1

"SAY YOU HAVE a red piece of attoo, when the beam is absorbed by the red, it's actually burning it;" he explained. "If I can do it in several visits, I can just burn it gently each time then the person forms new skin. "It has to be a period of time just men the mough in destroy some of the pigment and not the deep tissue."
Welssman, who recently retired from practice, said he removes that callow with a series of visits based on the size of the body marking. The average design, like an anchor on the arm, takes about a half dozen sittings that last about 20 minutes, like in anchor on the carm, takes about a ball dozen sittings that said about 20 minutes, lost of the said.

That gives a said and the flesh to heah, add.

There is no infection because because hear.

said. There is no infection because bacteria can't exist at 10,000 degrees and there is no need for affectare, he added. The total cost is $300. Pallents with green or greenish blue colors in the tattoo would be referred to a physician with a ruby laser. That laser uses a ruby crystal and recognizes all colors except red.

Chris Page did a tatoo of a single rose on the snkie of his wife, Paula.

"The scarring is very little unlike the carbon dioxide laser (also used in tattoo removal) which is not color sensitive and will remove anything," Weissman said.

Weissman said.

There is a layer of yellowish white fat beneath the epidermis, the outer layer of skin. The Argon laser beam, if it reaches that level, will bounce back, but a carbon dioxide laser won't, producing a major scar.

IN THE PAST, tattoos have been removed by aurgery, skin abrasives, carbon dioxide laser and acid, but Weissman believes those may all be unnecessary with the Argon Laser.
But he stresses that it's not a miracle worker.

Persons considering a tattoo should take into consideration the advice of professionals like Welker about the permanancy of the pattern selected. (A tattoo should be perfect in gloss and color for about 15 years.)

"It's a true mark, because we are not going to give the person the gor-geous skin that he or she had before the lattoo was applied," Welssman

Persons interested in tattoo re-moval using the Argon laser can contact Sinai Hospital's physi-cians referral number at (800) 248-3627.

Tattoos come of age as artwork tinued exposure to the sun can cause a tattoo to lose its glossy or colorful appearance. "You can't tell how the person's skin is going to take color, whether the person is black or white." Wood-lan said. "On a dark-skinned person some of the brightness inri going to be as vivid in a lot of cases. But in some eases, it might not make much difference. It's more the body's metabolism."

mends tattoos in red, orange and green to his black customers.

There are sayings about the mixture of beauty, vanily and pain. No matter how professional, a tattoo artist can't prevent pain, but Woodlan said that what pain there is isn't bad.

someone is scratching you," he said.
"Your body produces a chemical, endorphin, the body's own morphinelike painkiller. As an artist continues to tattoo the skin, the body sends the endorphin chemical to that area and a natural numbing process begins."

By the time the outline is finished, the inner area about to be shaded and colored is so anethesized that the rest of the procedure is relatively painless. Woodlan said.
As for people wearing tattoos

Monica Stapleton of Taylor beat out her boyfriend Jim Hawes of Can-ton, a mixer at Awrey Bakery, when it came to getting a tattoo. She sports a rose with his name across the ribbon on it.

Duane Fager of House of Ta-toos in West-land works on clown on the forearm of Dan Alten of Wayne.