

Sister Amnesia is fun

Polly Brown, the lead in the musical "The Boyfriend," where she "had to work on my British dialect."
In her senior year at Andover High School in Bloomfield Hills, Myers won the Traub Scholarship, and went to Europe to study voice. "I did musicals every year at Andover," she said about her high school years. "I also studied weekends at Wilco Way and every summer at Interlochen."

Then she attended Northwestern University in Illinois, developing her voice and performing abilities. "I've been acting professionally ever since I got out of school," she said. Film jobs have included spraying perfume and doing demonstrations — "everything actors out of work do. It's tough to get established."

MYERS MADE commercials in Los Angeles, where she started her show-business career. "I wanted to do musical theater and needed to be in New York, so I left," she said.

Asked which roles are her favorites, she replied, "Amnesia is right up there. She's funny. She gets to sing soprano and belting — it's hard to find both together." The belting comes in a country-western number "I Could've Gone to Nashville."

Myers lives in Manhattan, and has two cats. "I love to water-ski," she said. Valerie DeFenza, who plays Sister Mary Leo, taught her to water-ski in Florida, when they were appearing together in another production of "Nunsense."
Myers said her parents have seen her perform in "Nunsense" throughout the country. One night in New York, the audience included "40 nuns in habits. Yoko Ono and my parents."
She worked with Marilyn Farina, who stars as Sister Mary Cordelia, in "Nunsense" in New York and San Francisco. "She brings out the best in me," she said. "We get along well in real life."
