Who-dun-it? Maybe Buggy or Stella or Silkie Smoke

Allegan, Michigan—

There's something shady happening at The Winchester Inn.
Dom Marconi is glad-handing guests at his (could it be?) Velvet Room speakeasy.

Sultry Silkie Smoke is (gasp!) giving the come-hither sign to more than one male patron.

And what's Stella Stiletto up to, skulking around the gambling tables with Buggy the doorman?

Suddenly, a shot rings out! It's murder all right, a real "who-dun-it."

Murder Mystery Weekends at The Winchester Inn transform the elegant bed and breakfast into a living game of Clue. It's an invitation to the part of you that loves shadowy secrets and strange characters.

The trip down mystery lane actually begins a few weeks before guests arrive. Winchester Inn hosts Denise and Dave Ferber mail out personality profile questionnaires, and based upon the findings, assign characters and suggest costumes. Ten to 12 guests can take part in the enactment.

The weekend package includes a get-acquainted Friday night dessert, Saturday breakfast, the improvised mystery with catered dinner at the Inn on Saturday night (pay attention, some clues are revealed at the table!), munchies, soft drinks and dessert.
Sunday breakfast is also included.

Groups of hopeful Sam Spades can book all five of the Inn's guest rooms. Smaller groups or couples wishing to play-out their detective fantasies can be teamed with other like-minded mystery mavens.

Cost of the Murder Mystery Weekend package is $40 per person for the weekend, in addition to the weekend room rate ranging from $55 to $65.

The Winchester Inn is an 1863 Italianate mansion that's been painstakingly restored to its original beauty. Large common rooms offer television, a variety of games, complimentary beverages and several quiet sitting areas for socializing or reading.

The guest rooms (all with private baths) combine an atmosphere of relaxation with the elegance of days
