Checking the damage

Dave Ewart, a district chief with the Farmington Hills Fire Department, uses a flashlight to check the damage following a fire in the kitchen of an apartment in the Village Green complex Saturday. Firefighter Corey Bartsch looks on. The resident said she was heating cooking oil on the stove and it caught fire while she was in another room. A neighbor put out the blaze with his fire extinguisher. There were no injuries.

police/fire calls

Listed below are some of the Farmington-area police incidents, fire calls and court cases reported during the past week:

● DRUG ARREST

A man was arrested with drug paraphernalia following a loitering complaint at Gill Elementary in Farmington Hills early April 8. Three other men admitted that they were loitering around Gill Elementary. The arrest followed suspicious circumstances involving open windows at Power Middle School. A pat-down search revealed that one of the men had a marijuana pipe in his right front pocket.

● THEFTS REPORTED

A hood ornament valued at $100 was reported stolen from a car parked on Hayden Street in Farmington April 5.

Floodlights valued at $20 were reported stolen from the garage of a house on Valley View in Farmington, April 6.

● DAMAGE REPORTED

A car parked at Shiawassee Park in Farmington received $500 in damage, after the right passenger door lock was cut out April 6.

Damage was estimated at $150 when the window of a 1984 Mercury was broken out at the Ram's Horn restaurant, 32435 Grand River, Farmington, April 8.

A Farmington Hills homeowner claimed that he was lighting his BBQ Saturday afternoon when a nearby evergreen tree ignited according to the Hills Fire department. The homeowner extinguished the fire with a garden hose.

Residents of Hills neighborhood wake up to vandalized vehicles

Neighbors in the Fredericksburg/Petersburg area of Farmington Hills had a rude awakening when they went out to their vehicles one recent morning.

Some 20 vehicles, parked in driveways, either had their tires slashed or auto emblems pried off, according to Detective Sgt. Charles Nebus. The subdivision is north of 12 Mile Road, east of Halsted.

Some residents also reported pried-open gas tanks and broken radio antennas.

"The majority had hood ornaments taken," Nebus said. "A few had tires cut. It's a very minor kind of thing and not that uncommon in that area, but it's unusual for there to be that many."

Police have no suspects. "Whoever did it spent a lot of time in the neighborhood," Nebus said.

The record, however, in Farmington Hills is 175 hood and car emblems taken at one time, Nebus said.
