

Mazerov appointed executive director of Artists Series

The appointment of Leonard Mazerov of Bloomfield Hills as executive director of the American Artists Series has been announced by Joann Freeman, founder and director.

He succeeds JoAnne Wheaton who has served on the American Artists Series board since its founding 21 years ago and was executive director for the past three years.

In announcing Mazerov's appointment, Freeman said, "He is a man of many talents, an avid arts enthusiast, a person comfortable and experienced behind the footlights as well as one knowledgeable about the myriad details necessary to put on the show."

His experience in the performing arts includes acting in professional productions in both the United States and London, England. He is a dancer and a singer who has appeared in many musicals. His early television appearances were in Playhouse 90, Westinghouse Playhouse and commercials. He has been on the American Artists Series board for two years.

Freeman said plans for the 1991-92 season will be announced soon. The season is expected to include drama as well as music presentations and concerts by the AAS Chamber Players, a group which includes Freeman, a concert pianist and seven members of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Southfield's Cultural Arts Division will sponsor the Author's Luncheon Series beginning Wednesday, Sept. 11 through Dec. 11, 1991, at the Burgh Church, 26080 Berg Road and Civic Center Drive, Southfield from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

On Sept. 11 Dale Northrup, a college professor and architectural writer for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, will discuss his new book, "Frank Lloyd Wright in Michigan." Wright, one of the most innovative and creative architects in this century, died in 1959. Northrup will center his discussion on homes built for specific sites in Michigan.

Ruth Langan, romantic novelist, will be the guest on Oct. 9. She has been writing for 10 years and has published 27 romantic novels.

Renowned mystery author William K. Kienzle will speak on Nov. 13. His book, "Rearmy Murders," became a successful film. He subsequently wrote many mysteries, all of which were best sellers. A former priest, Kienzle devotes his time to writing and charitable endeavors.

On Dec. 11 photographer/teacher Monte Nagler, a student of the late Ansel Adams, will be the guest. He teaches classes throughout the greater Detroit area and writes a photography column for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. He will discuss the history of photography from its inception and he will display original works by Ansel Adams and Alfred Stieglitz.

An added attraction will be the local mystery writer, S.K. Wolf, on April 1 in room 115 of the Parks & Recreation Bldg., 26000 Evergreen Rd., Southfield. A former university librarian who has traveled extensively throughout Greece, Turkey and the Middle East, Wolf has entertained readers with both of her best sellers "The Harbinger Effect" and "Mackinac's Machine."
