This bands-on, studio class will study the roots of modern at starting with the breakup of realistic painting in the list of breakup of realistic painting in the list of breakup of realistic painting in the list of the line quality of the college of the continuity of the college of the and gratuany accounts and gratuany since.

Students will also "take a line for a walk" by using a continuous line to express various movements such as running, walking, jumping and emotions such as anger and joy.

Masters reviews the influence of Frant Kilne, a source of study of the expressionist abstract stroke. Students will experiment with lines using a large brush and black and white paint. The class will study the Fauve movement, creating bright landscapes with colored line, Van Gogh's brush stroke, creating self portraits; and Kandinsky's "Point Line and Plane" theory, with students creating abstract geometric paintings. Oil and acrylic painters will explore line with all of these exercises. Painting skills are shelpful, but not necessary sught for the Birnhagham Bhoomfield Art Association, the Ann Arbor Art Association, the Ann Arbor Art Association and Mercy College, where she was design director. She was assistant director for the Birnhagham-Bhoomfield Art Association for 11 years and design and color theory listructor at the Center for Creative Studies for five years.
