Michigan State looks to end luck of Irish

By Steve Paschal

Michigan State fans remember "the catch" all too well.

The Spartans, looking to knock off Notre Dame for only the fourth time in 21 years, took a 19-7 lead into the fourth quarter of last year's game against the top-ranked team in the country.

But, the Fighting Irish scored early in the quarter to cut the deficit to 19-14, then pulled off their second, last-minute comeback over a Michigan team in two weeks when quarterback Rick Mirer's long pass was deflected into the waiting hands of Adrian Jarrell at the Michigan State two-yard-line with 45 seconds showing on the clock.

Notre Dame scored seven seconds later, leaving the Spartan fans staring in stunned disbelief at a scoreboard that read Notre Dame, 20, Michigan State, 19.

Saturday, Sept. 21, the Spartans, who went on to finish the season with an 8-3 record that included a 17-16 Sun Bowl victory over Southern California, travel to South Bend, Ind., to play the Irish in a game to be televised live on NBC's Notre Dame Saturday.

Michigan State, led by all-American receiver Courtney Hawkins and running back Tico Duckett, is looking to overcome the "Luck of the Irish" and break a three-game losing streak at Notre Dame Stadium. The Irish should contend for a national title.
