Bean Cans

FARMINGTON
"Kenbrook Forest" is growing. Determined to do something constructive about the nation's ecology problems, students at Kenbrook Elementary School in Farmington have initiated a school-wide "Plant a Tree" program.

mington have initiated a school-wise "Plant a Tree" program.

An offer made by a food company to plant a tree for each bean label returned to them started Mrs. Kay Carlson and her sist grade class on the first planting. Skits, poems, songs, costumes and props have been used to promote the idea among the entire student body.

Fifth graders, in their study of America, became concerned about preserving the country's natural resources for their own generation and those of the future. They took up the bean label challenge and a fullfledged campaign was born.

Now a goal has been establish of 1,000 labels and the help of the community is requested. Labels from Big John's Beans should be dropped off at the school to make the forest grow. The reward will be cleaner air for all.
