

You've Heard 'Em

Those arguments on the subject of whether or not a bill is paid. And perhaps you know from experience how it hurts to pay the same bill twice. But that's just what the law compels you to do if you can't show a receipt.

That's fair enough. Where there isn't a receipt there's doubt on both sides of the argument. A Checking Account provides you with the best of all receipts—canceled checks. There's no argument left when a canceled check is shown.

We are working hard on our spelling because we would like to have one of our class go to Washington, D. C.

Doris Sterling has returned to the eighth grade, of the High School after being in Detroit for the winter.

Freshmen

The Freshmen English class are resurrecting books and books and more books trying to find new facts for their essay on "William Shakespeare and the Drama," before that terrible date, April 5, when they must submit the results of their labors.

Sophomores

The other classes of the High School have been wondering what the mysterious looking newspaper packages which are being daily brought to Miss Backus' desk contain. The Sophomores are not wasting any sleep guessing. They wisely shut their lips and ask you not to plan anything for Friday night, April 16. Watch for next week's items!

General Notices
