FARM FIRE PREVENTION CAMPAIGN

The destruction by fire of farm buildings is increasing to such a rapid rate that something must be done to educate the people along fire prevention lines. Buildings are growing older every year and more hazardous, and it is apparent that sufficient thought has not been given to make them more safe against fire. Every fire is preventable and it is with the determination to reduce this needless waste that The Michigan Business Farmer has inaugurated a campaign for fire prevention among the properties.

The first article appeared in that paper May 8, and this will be followed by others, covering the conditions as they exist and offering suggestions for fire prevention, which if heeded will be the means of saving hundreds of farm buildings every year. These articles will be reinforced by radio talks for fire prevention. The Business Farmer broadcasts market reports and farm news every evening at 7:00 o'clock, eastern time, through WGHF of Detroit, and the fire prevention talks will be given each Friday evening. The first by Charles V. Lane, State Fire Marshal, Friday evening, May 14 second by James Slocum, secretary of the Pioneer Mutual Fire Insurance Company, May 21 and the third by Hon. Leonard T. Hands, State Insurance Commissioner, May 28.

Every farmer who has a radio should tune in at the time and date specified, and if you have none go to a nearby neighbor who has one and hear practical talks from those whose experience is worth knowing.

Museum's Fine Exhibit of Tropic Butterflies

The collection of South American butterflies in the United States National museum at Washington is now the most comprehensive in the world. Owing to the efforts of William Schaus, of the division of insects, dozens of cases of rare, brilliantly hued butterflies of the tropics are now being unpacked and arranged in the museum files. Monsieur Dognin is a wealthy French amateur entomologist who for years has had men collecting specimens for him in South America, Europe and the Orient as well as many other odd corners of the earth. Long a close personal friend of Mr. Schaus, he promised him first choice if his cherished butterflies should ever be put on the market. Financial depression following the war eventually forced Monsieur Dognin to offer his specimens for sale at $50,000. This was a figure much beyond the resources of a purely scientific institution, but Mr. Schaus set out to acquire the money by subscription. After several months he succeeded in raising sufficient funds and last June, accompanied by his colleague, J. T. Barnes, sailed for France. Once there five weeks of painstaking labor was necessary to get the fragile insects packed and ready for shipping.

THE VANISHING WHITE

"I'm afraid there will soon be no white people in Europe."
 "You're joking—why?"
 "Because all those who haven't turned Red are decidedly blue."

Pints, Not Gallons

Mr. B, a real estate man, wished to buy a milk cow. He saw one advertised and went to see her. The owner, a woman, said she was a good cook, and gave eight gallons a day.

Mr. B thought that was good enough and soon bargained for her. She did not give eight gallons nor near it, so Mr. B went back to see the woman.

When he drove up she was standing in the door and before he had time to say anything to her, she said:
 "Oh, Mr. B, I see my mistake; I see my mistake, I said the cow gave eight gallons of milk a day, and I meant eight pints."—Indianapolis News.

Where "Yes" Means "No"

What is perhaps the cause of the innumerable diplomatic misunderstandings in Albania has been discovered. When an Albanian wishes to convey a vigorous "No" he nods his head gently up and down and says "Ja." That, in German, is "Yes." And when he means "Yes" he shakes his head vigorously from side to side. One result is that when you offer an Albanian a certain price for merchandise in the public market and he accepts you think he is refusing and go on offering him more. One feels that the diplomatic technique is very highly developed in this primitive country.

Big Sum From Auto Tolls

Tolls aggregating $800,000 were collected from 861,000 motor vehicles while crossing Gandy bridge, which connects Tampa and St. Petersburg, Florida, during its first year of operation. The bridge is five and one-quarter miles long and is claimed to be the longest motor toll bridge and the longest overwater highway in the world.

Banishing Fruit Bruises

In orchards near Portland, Ore., a novel fruit gatherer is being used to catch all the fruit without bruising it. The device is mounted on wheels like a wheelbarrow, and when the tree is shaken the fruit falls on a sloping sheet of canvas and rolls through an opening into a canvas container.

Checkers Ancient Game

The game of draughts or checkers is said to be of the greatest antiquity. Pieces of checker boards and men have been found in tombs of Egyptian rulers of a date not later than 1600 B. C. Some of these are at present preserved in the British Museum. Homer in his "Odyssey" speaks about this game being played by the suitors of Penelope.

Young Learn Easiest

A child can learn to pronounce his own or a foreign language best at the age of about three years, according to Dr. J. McKen Cattell, psychologist. There is then a drop. Doctor Cattell continues, "and after about twelve years he cannot learn correct pronunciation. Perhaps a boy can learn to ride a bicycle best at the average age of ten, to drive a motor car at the age of sixteen."
