

The Drift to the Cities and the continued movement away from the farm today greatly increases the economic importance of the farmer who stays on the job.

His numbers diminished, the nation's demands upon him for food and clothing increased, a great responsibility rests upon his shoulders.

Our many years of close co-operation with local farming interests have given us a practical, common-sense understanding of the farmer's problems. This enables us to render a banking service which farmers find especially helpful under present conditions.
