

Pay Home Bills By Check

Paying home bills by check is a most sensible plan. It assures you a receipt which guards against paying the same bill more than once. Furthermore, the greater convenience is especially worth while.

MRS. WOLFE WRITES OF WESTERN TRIP
South Bend, Wash., July 23, 1926.

To Mrs. Miller and Other Friends in Michigan:

When we left Winnipeg, that large city noted for its churches schools and colleges, we came west on the Canadian Pacific railway. Its Pullman cars were very comfortable and meals first class. The waiters were Canadians, so we had splendid service. When going through the Province of Alberta we awoke one morning, the second of July, to find the ground covered with snow. It had also hailed during the night. In the town of Edison some damage was done to gardens.

The most interesting part of the trans-continental journey from a purely scenic standpoint was the run from Jasper to Vancouver, a distance of 250 miles, through the Canadian Rockies, the largest and most stately of which is 14,000 feet high. It was covered with snow and seemed majestic and wonderful. The Blue River, winding its way was always in sight, and many tunnels were passed through hiding the light of day. At one point a railroad like that through such a rocky country is marvelous. We stand back and are glad for the achievements of the men of this generation.

Reaching Seattle we felt the bracing ocean breezes and viewed the large battle ships built during the war. It is a very beautiful city.

I am sending you a picture of the celebrated Peace Arch on the international boundary line at Blaine, Wash., dedicated in 1921 in commemoration of one hundred years of peace between the United States and Canada. It is the only arch of its kind in existence and is 67 feet high erected at a cost of $125,000. The inscription on it is, "Children of a Common Mother."

In Seattle I met a schoolmate that I had not seen for fifty years.

We are now enjoying ourselves and resting after our journey at the home of our son and daughter Fred and Annie Bond at South Bend, Wash., a small, lively city on the River Willapa just twelve miles from the Pacific Ocean. I will write again.

Your friend,
Mrs. Charlotte Wolfe.

FARMINGTON GIRL LIKES THE WEST

Denver, Colorado
July 30, 1926.

Dear Frances:

Well this is certainly God's country, we are in Denver which is about 25 miles from the mountains. We go real often and camp, the old Rockies are so many times larger than we expected, they are so majestic and grand and wicked and beautiful that one feels tiny and insignificant when in the midst of them. The climate too is wonderful and mother and I are feeling fine. Wish all the girls were here.

We found the roads in fine shape, we went through Toledo first, then Ft. Wayne, Indianapolis, Manhattan, Terra Haute, St. Louis, Kansas City, Topeka. Went thru Sears, Roebuck Co's plant while in Kansas City, then when we were about 60 miles from Denver we began to get the outline of the Rockies, such a beautiful sight there is too much to tell in a letter, will have to have you come over for a whole day when I get home. We leave here for Montana about August 5 and that trip will take us over the Wyoming plains and range lands. Some places it is 8 and 10 miles between houses and then their buildings are just visible from the highway. Well Frances I must close for this time, will maybe send you word from Montana.

Your friend,
Geraldine Sherlock.

More Electricity Used

Although most people do not know what a kilowatt-hour of electric energy is, the average family uses 3,300 such units of power every year for lighting their homes and doing work they once did by main strength, according to the calculations of Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce. Ten years ago this current consumption averaged but 250 kilowatt-hours.
