WHERE SHALL WE GO?

To Farmington?

THAT question will be asked many times during the months to come. Thousands of Detroit families are pushing out and away from the crowded and congested streets of the city.

IN A FEW SHORT MONTHS, the advantages and living conditions of Farmington, Detroit's most desirable residential suburb will be weighed.

How will they decide?

What must Farmington do to draw her rightful share of the oncoming thousands?

First of all, Farmington needs a wider Grand River to adequately take care of increasing traffic. Further than that, the people of Detroit must be told of the splendid advantages Farmington has to offer. Their interest must be aroused so they will come out and see for themselves.

Toward the accomplishment of these purposes, the Greater Farmington Association has already expended much time, effort and money. You too can assist the growth of your home town. We're counting on the support of every loyal citizen.
