

Before You Start Your Furnace

AT THIS season of chilly mornings and evenings health and comfort alike call for some means of heating bathroom and living room. You may not care to start the furnace yet and possibly overheat the house on warm days—and it certainly is a bother to clean out the furnace and start a new fire.

The electric air heater helps out in these 'betwixt and between' fall days. It will take off the edge of the first chill of fall; and it is often convenient to use for auxiliary heating during the winter. The small heater costs about three cents an hour for current. Turned on and off in an instant.

ARTISTS OF DISTINCTION TO APPEAR HERE!

Harry Raymond Pierce and Zulte Spencer Pierce are artists of distinction, who have been delighting the most discriminating audiences for more than fifteen years. They are to appear here in an evening of miscellaneous plays, sketches and readings as one of the several fine numbers of the Progressive Class Lyceum Course.

They have no superior in their particular line of artistic endeavors. Humor, patriotism, literature and music are beautifully painted into irresistible and worthwhile programs. A new dramatic number, "Cape Cod Folks" will be used this season—a story of typical New England life that fits the histrionic abilities of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce ideally. Interspersed with their dramatic sketches will be humorous and dramatic impersonations, musical novelties, duets, fascinating cornet imitations, etc. Mr. Pierce has an unusual power of changing his personality, as it were, so completely that he seems to have left the platform for the time being, while some character takes his place. He thinks, feels, lives—an almost unlimited number of characters. The personality of Mrs. Pierce is distinctly magnetic. A Pierce program usually consists of two or three short sketches interspersed with humorous and dramatic impersonations arranged from a very extensive repertoire in which most of the selections used have been written or dramatized especially for the Pierces.
