What Is Farmington Property Worth?

Who can tell just how much property in the Greater Farmington area really is worth? It is being bought and sold nearly every day for a definite price. That price in most cases constitutes its true value today. But what about its potential value? What will this same property be worth six months or a year from now? Or in two years? Or three?

Farmington is growing—but a faster and greater growth is under way. How soon it will come depends on how soon Farmington is ready for it to come. New highways and conveniences must be made available. The people of Detroit must be told about Farmington and the wonderful advantages she has to offer.

When this is accomplished—expansion will come to Farmington—as it has already come to other towns and every man, woman and child in Farmington will reap a benefit.

Let's prepare now and hasten the day of greater growth.

ARTHUR D. SMITH,
