CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

ONCE again the glad time of the year is with us. Children who have been looking forward to Christmas week after week are filled with the pleasure of anticipation. Will they be disappointed?

Christmas celebrates the coming of a Child into the world, therefore it is essentially a child's holiday.

Of course, the boys and girls around our hearth need consideration; they must be made happy, but how about the little lads and lasses without fathers and mothers, or whose parents are in poverty? Are they to write in vain to "Dear Santa Claus"? Hundreds of these pitiful letters, scrawled by hopeful chubby fists, are left unclaimed at the post office every year.

Mothers, fathers, aunts, uncles and cousins, our home is no longer the house in which we live, plus the yard or farm surrounding it. The entire neighborhood, town, city, county, state and nation is ours; its inhabitants live in our home. It is our duty, so far as we can, to make every child happy at Christmas, instead of permitting ourselves to get buried selfishly in tissue paper and gay ribbons.

Let's make this holiday season one in which the Christmas spirit, the peace on earth and good will to all men, prevails everywhere. Especially where there are children. So a Merry Christmas to you—Frank Herbert Sweet.

WEST FARMINGTON

The West Farmington Arbor, Ancient Order of Gleaners, met at the home of Starr Graham for their election and installation of officers. The following officers were elected and installed: Chief Gleaner, Starr Graham; Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. William Graham; Chaplain, Mrs. Anna Campbell; Conductor, George Heilker; Conductress, Mrs. Starr Graham; Outer Guard, Mrs. Calvin Green; Inner Guard, Mrs. Smith Green; Mrs. Amy Geigler, Lecturer. After the installation a pot luck supper was served to about thirty-five guests.

Mrs. Martindale's Bible Class of about seventeen boys are sponsoring the community tree put on by about fourteen organizations to be held in the Walled Lake Consolidated School gymnasium Wednesday evening. A splendid program is being prepared and several baskets will be given to different families of the community.

Miss Muriel Dundas is passing through Pontiac on her way to her home in Bad Axe, Wis. She has been attending the Columbia University. Miss Dundas was formerly the Home Demonstrating Agent of Oakland county.

Jessie King and Herman Senkel of Detroit spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Tamm.

Mrs. Grace Halstead, Mrs. Arthur Green, Mrs. Irvin Knapp, Mrs. Wm. Graham, Mrs. Frank Cox attended the North Farmington Auxiliary bazaar and chicken dinner Friday. Mrs. William Graham's ticket drew the nice pillow that was donated to the society.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Knapp and son William spent Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. William Graham's.

Alden Green is confined to his home with chicken pox.

Making Ready for a Gay Christmas

Breakable Articles Should Be Removed to Places of Safety.

By MARGARET BRUCE

EVERY home-woman knows what an tangle of extra things there is in the house at Christmas time. Every room is already as full as it can hold, yet we must make place for outgoing and incoming gifts, the boxes, the rolls of tinsel and ribbon, the pots of growing flowers that are sent by friends, the boxes of candy, the bowls of fruit and nuts, and all the pretty paraphernalia of the holidays.

All these extra articles must come to rest on the tables, the mantels, the tops of desks or bookshelves, and other surfaces, generally to the detriment if not the actual destruction of the vases, glass candelabra, bowls of berries, framed photographs and other ornaments that stay here the year round. There isn't room for everything, and in the Christmas haste something is sure to be pushed aside and broken.

The wise housewife, therefore, clears her decks a week or so beforehand. She carefully tucks away upon a closet shelf the breakable treasures of china, glass, pottery and plaster. On the mantel she leaves only some brass or silver candlesticks, and perhaps a copper bowl for Christmas greens. The tables are cleared of all small objects and hold only a few books (in wooden or metal book-cases), heavy reading lamps that cannot be tipped over and some Christmas magazines, perhaps.

Space on top of bookshelves, ordinarily occupied by swinging photograph frames, delicate blown glass figures, and the like, are swept clean and filled with branches of pine, sprays of hollyhock, or clumps of crimson berries, with some holly added the day before Christmas. As holly dries out more quickly than evergreens, and the yellowed leaves drop within a few days it is best not to bring the holly into the warm house any earlier than necessary.

The dining-room furnishings should be given the same protective treatment. Delicate tea sets, the fragile after-dinner coffee service, even breakable fruit bowls and the like, should be hidden away until after the exciting morning when gifts are opened at the breakfast table, perhaps, and the buffet, sideboard, serving table and mantel are hastily crowded with half-wrapped gifts. The house will look furnished enough, never fear, and you will have the comfortable feeling that none of your breakable treasures is in danger.
