Men With Bald HeadsWill See the Point

The late Senator McKinley said one day to a Washington correspondent:

"In your writings, my boy, never refer to a man as an old man. You'll hurt him if you do. 'Yes, you'll hurt and anger him and lose his friendship."

"I didn't learn till I began to grow old myself how horrible it is to have your age brought home to you in any way. You, my boy, can't understand this, can you? Well, that's because you're still young. But you're bald, you know, prematurely bald."

The correspondent blushed a dark purplish, angry red.

"—and here's a little story," Senator McKinley went on, "that will show you just how it is."

"A lady sat with her little daughter in the lounge of a Florida hotel when a bald-headed man came up and took a seat close by."

"Oh, mamma," said the little girl, in a loud, startled voice, "look at that man, mamma! Not a hair on his head! Isn't it awful?"

"The lady bent over the child and whispered fiercely:

"Hush! Hush, you little imp! He'll hear you."

"But," said the little girl, with a bewildered look, "but doesn't he know it?"—Detroit Free Press.

Home Makers' ColumnCOTTON CHARMEUSE AND SATEN MUCH IN FAVOR BECAUSE OF WIDE UTILITY

One of the most attractive new materials shown this spring is cotton charmeuse. It is not actually a new material but an improved quality of a very old and familiar fabric—sateen. According to the Bureau of Home Economics charmeuse usually is lighter in weight than sateen, more highly mercerized, and the warp forms the surface instead of the filling, as in sateen.

Printed matters have been applied to sateens for many years. These were designed primarily for coat linings and were large, scrolly designs unsuitable for dresses. This spring cotton charmeuse has appeared in small neat patterns much like those used in English prints. Because of its lustrous surface and lovely texture it has become increasingly popular for house dresses, sports dresses, smocks, and children's dresses. Many mothers like it for the baby's rompers because it is one of the smoothest and softest of the cotton fabrics.

Cotton charmeuse is also woven in striped and checked patterns in plain pastel colors. In this form it is used largely for underwear and night wear, such as bloomers, nightgowns, slips, pajamas, and nightgowns.

Sateen Popular

Ordinary sateen is still used a great deal because of its durability and wide range of plain colors. In blue, tan, and green sateen makes excellent play suits for the small boy and girl. Sateen has long been used as a lining for draperies, but it is now being used as a drapery fabric itself. It comes in fast colors and is an economical and serviceable fabric to use for pillow covers, bedspreads, and covers for comforters. It combines well with cretonne as valance or trimming bands. In a heavier weight, warp surface fabric commonly known as Venetian satin, it is used for upholstery purposes.

Charles Hoxkin of Detroit has bought land on Orchard Lake avenue near the 12-Mile road and is building a home.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown spent Monday at Blissfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hilton, Mr. and Mrs. R. Hilton of Detroit were the Sunday-dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Damon.

ARE YOU A SENSIBLE WOMAN?

It may astonish the housekeepers of this country to learn that more fires occur in homes and that most fires start in kitchens. The loss and damage to homes in insured dwellings amount to about $65,000,000 a year, a very large percentage being preventable. About 15,000 persons are burned to death each year in the United States, a majority of the victims being women and children.

An educational leaflet issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters observes that the numerous fatalities due to carelessness in handling of matches, gas, kerosene, gasoline, electrical attachments and numerous other articles, makes it astonishing that any sensible woman would use kerosene or gasoline to accelerate a sluggish fire.

A Chicago woman knocked a man cold and then had him arrested for trying to flirt with her on the street. Maybe the lady thought it was her husband.

A queer case of profiteering came from the southern part of the state, where a farm hand sold his old woman to a tin peddler for fifteen dollars.

Grain Beats Grass in Summer Feeding Test

On May 30, 1926, cow No. 65 on the Large Research Farm had produced in 70 days 318 lbs. more milk than cow No. 86, which had freshened at the same time. They had both gone on pasture, without grain, and No. 86 stayed on Larro. Seventy days later No. 86 had made up the 318 lbs. she was behind, and was 327 lbs. of milk ahead of her rival. From May 30, to August 10, No. 86 had gained 34 lbs. in weight, while No. 65 had lost 147 lbs. in weight, as well as production honors. Need we point out this moral? Feed Larro with grass this summer. It pays.
