Journey to wonderful land of Oz

Performances of the Birmingham Theatre production of "The Wizard of Oz" continue through Dec. 15. For ticket information, call the box office at 644-3333. The Birmingham Theatre is at 211 S. Woodward.

If your heart's desire is two hours of pure nostalgic fun, then follow the yellow brick road to the Birmingham Theatre and see their wonderful "The Wizard of Oz."

In a lively production that is both familiar and unique, there are many clever embellishments to this re-staging of the classic MGM movie musical.

The story unfolds from the vantage point of L. Frank Baum (William Brown), author of the original Oz books, as he struggles to meet the demands of his publisher and keep up with his characters, who seem to have taken on a life of their own.

BAUM NARRATES the play and also fills in for several minor characters, changing his voice for each. Brown handles the role smoothly, and he is particularly amusing as the voice of Glinda, the good witch.

The show opens with a nasty confrontation between Baum and his publisher, W.W. West (Darren Matthias), with the latter flourishing his umbrella as he exits in a huff. So it makes perfect sense that in this production the same actor plays a male Wicked Witch of the West, exercising power with his magic umbrella. Matthias is appropriately nasty without being too melodramatic, and he brandishes tongue-in-cheek humor as much as wicked sneers.

As Dorothy (Diane Della Piazza) and her friends make their way to the Emerald City, all of the familiar Harold Arlen-E.Y. Harburg songs are intact. Additional music and lyrics have also been added by Worth Gardner, the production's creator as well as director and choreographer.

THERE'S STILL the hooney rhythms of "Yellow Brick Road," "We're Off to See the Wizard," "If I Only Had a Brain," and "Ding Dong the Witch Is Dead," and the hauntingly lovely "Over the Rainbow." New additions include "Optimistic Voices," sung Las Vegas-style by the Emerald City Wizzettes in fluorescent green skin-tight jumpsuits, and a second act reprise of "Over the Rainbow" played on various instruments by the Emerald City Ozmoza and sounding like a bad high school band.

It's refreshing that the show can poke fun at itself. During an unorthodox reprise of "We're Off to See the Wizard," Dorothy stops the music and confronts Baum with a sour inquiry of "Is this the only dance we get to do?" Assured that it is, she demands, "Why don't you at least try to develop it?"

DELLA PIAZZA'S Dorothy is pert and perky, and she has a pleasant singing voice. John Schiappa makes a very lovable Scarecrow, the rubbery-legged fellow in search of a brain. Bob Arnold is a totally winning, adorable pussycat as the Cowardly Lion in search of courage. Howard Kay is fine as the rusty Tin Man in search of a heart, though his character is never given as much personality as his companions.

The absolute show-stealers are the Munchkins, who are so outrageously funny they deserve to star in a sequel or better yet their own TV series. The chorus of little people pop up waist-high through trap doors and dance with shoes on their hands.

Their fake roly-poly bodies and arms are dressed in funky, psychodelic costumes, and their heads appear disproportionately large. As they dance they sometimes flip over and must struggle to right themselves. From the moment they appear, both adults and children howl with delighted laughter.

Paul Shortt's costumes are traditional for the principals, wildly creative for some of the chorus numbers. His set designs function very effectively, especially the yellow brick road that forms a double spiral upwards but always returns those who transverse it back to where they started.

Pyrotechnic tricks from the witch's umbrella, a flying bed, and the flashing green eyes of the huge Wizard mask are among the special effects that make theater magic for the youngsters in the audience. Pacing is near-perfect, slipping right along except for the slow opening preceding the first song.

By the play's end, the principals and author Baum understand that it takes courage to follow one's heart's desire, but the effort is worth it. Likewise it takes courage for director Gardner to try a fresh approach to re-telling one of the world's best-loved tales, but the effort pays off. The old familiar parts are still great fun, and the new additions are also great fun, that's a pretty good formula.

Students let talents fly in 'Peter Pan'

Marnie Baumer of Garden City plays Peter in the Bonstelle Theatre's production of James M. Barrie's "Peter Pan," Nov. 29 through Dec. 8.

Originally written for the Llewellyn-Davies boys, who were friends of Barrie, "Peter Pan" is the story of a little boy who refuses to grow up, and along with the Darling children, sets off on an adventure to Never-Never Land.

The Bonstelle Theatre is on the campus of Wayne State University, 3424 Woodward Detroit, call 577-2972 for ticket information.

Also appearing in the show are Jennifer George of Farmington Hills, Todd Hoffman of West Bloomfield, D. Robertson Welcher of Westland, Rachel Loiselle of Southfield, and Michael J. Serpiglia of Troy.

Baumer, a sophomore majoring in theater at Wayne State University in Detroit, plays Peter Pan, the boy who wouldn't grow up. She is a graduate of Garden City High School.

Earlier this year, she appeared in the children's show, "Step on a Crack," at the Hilbert Theatre and "Antigone," in the WSU Studio Theatre.

George, a senior majoring in theater at WSU, plays the First Twin, one of the Lost Boys. She is a graduate of North Farmington High School.

Hoffman, a senior majoring in theater at WSU, plays Cookson, a pirate. He is a graduate of West Bloomfield High School.

Welcher, a sophomore majoring in theater at Wayne State University, plays Skylights, a pirate. He is a graduate of Livonia Franklin High School.

Loiselle, a senior majoring in theater at WSU, plays Tiger Lily and Liza the maid. She is a graduate of Marian High School in Birmingham, and is also a member of Wayne State's touring dance troupe, Movin' Theatre.

Serpiglia, a senior majoring in theater at WSU, plays Nana, the canine nanny to the Darling children, and a Chippewa Native member. He is a graduate of Troy High School and recently performed at Walt Disney World and played roles in "Chicago," "Paper Dolls," "Anything Goes" and "Cinderella" at the Bonstelle. He is also a member of Movin' Theatre.
