

Hills' Dwyer heads chiefs association

Farmington Hills police Chief William Dwyer is the new president of the Southeastern Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police. Dwyer was elected to the top post by his colleagues Dec. 5. Frank Lashoff, Farmington Public Safety director, was elected second vice president. The Southeastern Michigan Chiefs of Police represents approximately 800 law enforcement executives. The membership includes all chiefs and directors in southeastern Michigan, along with representatives from the private security field.

Installation of the new officers and directors will be at 1 p.m., Jan. 9, 1992, at the Glen Oaks Country Club in Farmington Hills.

Farmington has board openings

Several positions are open on boards and commissions in the city of Farmington, according to City Manager Robert Deane.

Slots on the city's Traffic and Safety Board, the Planning Commission and the Beautification Committee are available, and city officials are seeking residents to fill them. Interested residents can send a letter and/or resume in care of the city manager, Farmington City Hall, 23500 Liberty, Farmington, 48335.

In the letter, detail which positions interest you and offer any background which might be helpful. The city council will schedule interviews and, subsequently, make appointments to fill the positions.
