• OFFICIALS SPEAK

Three third grade classes at Larkshire Elementary joined together recently to learn about their community.

Farmington Hills Mayor Jon Grant spoke to students about local government, how it runs and the voting process. Wendy Strip-Sittener, executive director of the Farmington Downtown Development Authority, filled students in on the history, community services and recreational programs available. Chamber of commerce executive director Jody Soronen gave the classes information on community growth, businesses and what they offer.

Each student received a map of the Farmington area. They were able to locate their school, city offices and neighborhoods.

The learning unit was completed when the students toured the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College. The tour included the Smith Theater, campus classrooms, the culinary arts area and library.

• GRANT RECEIVED

The Farmington school system is funding a grant for $10,000 to do the initial stage of construction for an integrated communication system into Longacre Elementary school.

The state-of-the-art communication system will be similar to projects installed at Hillside and Gull elementary schools.

The grant was written by Longacre teachers and approved by the district's Technology Advisory committee, according to principal Bill Smith. With the new system, each classroom will be tied to the media center, office and other classrooms and allow classrooms to receive and produce television, video recording, laser disc and audio productions.

A second grant approved by the committee authorizes purchase of touch windows for existing computers at Longacre.
