

Austin, Band 'Brass' In Memorial Parade

FARMINGTON The dignitaries and marching units lined up thus far indicate this year's Memorial Day Parade in Farmington will be as big as previous years.

Michigan Secretary of State Richard Austin has agreed to appear in the May 31 parade along with an assortment of seven generals, State Rep. Raymond L. Baker (R-Farmington) and a number of local leaders.

THE GUEST of honor will be Major General Fred Miller, deputy chief of staff of the U.S. Air Force with headquarters in the Pentagon, Washington, D. C.

The parade, which will begin at 10 a.m. and last about 90 minutes, will also feature the 661st Air Force Band, better known as the Air Force Logistics (AFLC) Band consisting of 61 enlisted men and one officer.

Headquartered at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, the band is one of the top musical outfits in the USAF and is one of the few military bands which has been awarded the Air Force Outstanding Unit Citation.

THE AFLC Band has provided music for military and civilian audiences since 1942 when it organized with 12 men.

In 1969 alone, more than 500,000 persons were entertained by the band at various performances in addition its numerous radio and television appearances.

The band performs either as a concert or marching band and, at times, is divided into components such as several dance bands, combos, a brass ensemble and a woodwind quintet.

About a third of the members hold bachelor degrees in music and several are working towards their doctorate degree. About 45 percent of the musicians are career Air Force members.

The band has performed for presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson and represented the Department of Defense at events honoring Apollo 11 Command Pilot Neil Armstrong and Astronaut John Glenn.

The AFLC concert repertoire has an extreme versatility from Bach to Bacharach and Sousa to Clifton Williams.

so far include mobilized equipment from all military branches, veterans organizations, scouting and military personnel, school bands, Miss Americanism Queen and the Liberty Bells, and the Founders Festival Queen of 1970.

Tree

Continued from Page 1A removed because of the paving. In return, the Klinkmans will give the city the necessary right-of-way so the pavement can be relocated to keep the big maple alive.

Naturalists who examined the tree estimate its age at about 300 years and long-time residents report it was used as a marker by the Indians.

Paul Thompson, of the Michigan Botanical Club and a teacher at Cranbrook, said it was one of the oldest trees in Michigan.

The maple is between 60-70 feet tall, about 40 inches in diameter and 120 inches in circumference.
