

DID YOU EVER GET THE FEELING THAT THE PEOPLE WHO DESIGN SUBDIVISIONS WOULDN'T THINK OF LIVING IN ONE?

No trees, no hills. No open spaces. No sunsets. One naked split-level after another. America the Beautiful is going down in a sea of subdivisions.

We don't like it. And since we build subdivisions, we're in a position to do something about it.

For instance. We think this business about cramming as many homes as possible into every acre is too business-like.

Our approach is much less practical. We build around nature instead of over it. Visit any Thompson-Brown community. You'll be confronted with things like hills. And real live streams. And large open areas with miles of paths, acres of grass, and lots of recreational facilities.

Y And the homes are few and far between.

They're also quite different from one another -- because of another unbusinesslike notion of ours. We think the cookie-cutter approach to building a house is too ugly. So we work with many different builders in each one of our communities. They way, each one of our homes can have its own character and personality. We'll even custom-build your home if you want us to.

There's just one problem. Money. Thompson-Brown houses are expensive. Because our methods are expensive. But we find the results a lot easier to live with. You will too. We'll be showing you why in future ads. In the meantime, you can see why for yourself. Just visit a Thompson-Brown community.
