

They're too young for nihilism, too smart for rock'n'roll and too uncoordinated for the dance clubs. London's Creation record label has offered its musical supporters a way out of the post-everything rat of the '90s.

With hands like a Miami screen star, the 25-year-old Billy Valentine, Creation has craved a new movement in music with roots stemming from the back-of-the-alley clubs in Britain to the current 'underground fever,' sweeping the United States.

"The Story of Creation" home video captures the three hands that exemplify the movement. All three have attracted a substantial following in the U.S.

The 60-minute video cassette by Warner Reprose Video has a suggested list price of $12.95.
