Re/Max teams to help children with speech disorders

Re/Max Realtors, with regional headquarters in Southfield, has teamed with William Beaumont Hospital to help children with hearing and speech problems attend a special preschool operated by the hospital in West Bloomfield.

The Realtors have pledged at least $50,000 to the program this year, freeing up grants that previously provided financial aid to preschool families for other pediatric projects at Beaumont.

More than 200 of the 320 agents who work in the 21 metro Re/Max offices have agreed to donate part of their sales commissions to Communication Station Preschool, said Jason Sherman, Re/Max spokesman.

Other planned fund-raisers include a raffle, golf outing and Las Vegas Night.

Re/Max is the only company in this area that has directed that all donations collected in-house be used for scholarships, said Tina Latour, a speech pathologist at the preschool.

"We were very surprised, very excited, very relieved by it," Latour said. "For us, it will actually provide more and more services for individual children."

"Re/Max is literally taking ownership of this project," said Vera Stojanovic, director of Children's Miracle Network projects at Beaumont.

The 24 youngsters now involved

The 24 youngsters now involved in the school — who have a hard time understanding and expressing themselves — can receive individual time with therapists as well as socializing opportunities with other children.

in the school — "who have a hard time understanding and expressing themselves" — can receive individual time with therapists as well as socializing opportunities with other children, Latour said.

The girl, upwards of $32 per day, usually isn't absorbed by medical insurance. That's where Re/Max steps in.

"I think it really comes down to what Realtors are about," Sherman said. "It's a grass roots thing. It's a matter of giving back to the community. Ninety percent of the kids are from the tri-county area where we do most of our business. It's a place where we're able to be localized."

Ideas were bountiful around last fall at regional headquarters to get involved in some kind of community outreach, Sherman said.

At about the same time, international headquarters decided to get involved with Children's Miracle Network, a charity which has a relationship with Beaumont Hospital.

"We mobilized very quickly," Sherman said. "We got committee members in each of our 21 offices. We printed a certificate of membership for those who join.

"The agents are independent business people and are doing this completely on their own accord. It's different with everyone. Some are donating a dollar amount, some a percentage. We're looking at $25,000 from commissions, and $25,000 from other fund-raisers.

"It was real easy to sell," she said. "Basically, I walked around to all the agents and just talked to them directly. One selling point was kids. I asked, 'If you had kids and didn't have insurance, no benefits, wouldn't you like to have this available?' Everyone was real positive."

"It's a nice way to give back," Bailey added. "It shows we're not just here making money. We're giving back to people who have helped us."

year. We know we'll bypass that." Gell Bailey, a Realtor with Re/Max Executive, promoted a 100-percent participation level in her Farmington Hills office.

"It was real easy to sell," she said. "Basically, I walked around to all the agents and just talked to them directly. One selling point was kids. I asked, 'If you had kids and didn't have insurance, no benefits, wouldn't you like to have this available?' Everyone was real positive."

"It's a nice way to give back," Bailey added. "It shows we're not just here making money. We're giving back to people who have helped us."

Meeting delays could present opportunities for challenges

ROBERT M.
MEISNER

Our bylaws state that the annual meetings of the association must take place on the third Tuesday of March. Many times we do not have a monthly meeting. Is that a violation of the bylaws?

In the old days, certain condominium developer's attorneys used certain days of the month as a designated time for holding the meetings of the association. While I do not believe it would be a serious breach of the condominium documents to have the meeting on a day other than the prescribed date in the documents during the month, I do believe that the longer the meeting is delayed, the better chance a challenge to the holding of that meeting would have to succeed.

In the old days,

Generally speaking, I advise our association clients to have the meeting in as close a proximity to the time set in the condominium documents as possible, and to otherwise amend the condominium documents to provide greater flexibility to the association for holding the meetings — for example, to change the bylaws to provide that a meeting can take place during the month of March as opposed to any specific date.

I am the president of our condominium association and am having difficulty getting some of the co-owners to clean up around their unit when they have made plantings. We do not have any authority to take any action to get them to clean up the mess that they have planted. Any suggestions?

In the future, it is important to have each modification or approval with respect to change to the common elements embodied in a modification agreement. But if you look at your condominium documents, you will no doubt find a provision in them that allows the board to maintain the common elements and to make any co-owner repair or replace common elements that are damaged because of his negligence. More than likely, your documents require that a co-owner assume the responsibility to make good on any landscaping modifications that he or she has done. You should also insure that your have a provision in your documents that allows you to go in and maintain or replace the landscaping in the co-owner's cost with the ability to collect the costs by filing a lien. If you do not have those provisions, you should have your documents revised.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate and corporate law.
