Hawks eye 3rd straight LAA tennis title

BY NEAL ZIPSER SPECIAL WRITER

High school is starting and the fall season is right around the corner. You know what that means — Farmington Hills Harrison is ready to claim another championship.

Most people come to this conclusion over the success of the Hawk football program. This season, however, the football team is rebuilding, but Harrison is expected to continue their domination in another sport — girls tennis.

"This may be the year that another sport at Harrison gets some recognition," said cusch Bernie Guldistein, who enters his 18th season. "The football team has deserved its recognition." But Harrison also has had good hasketball teams and haschall teams recently."

Goldstein's modesty may have omitted the words "tennis teams," but the rest of the league is well uware of the Hawk's recent success. Harrison has won the Western Lakes Activities Association title the past twa seasons and has only got one conference dual meet in the last two years. After losing their first non-conference dual meet in the last two years. After losing their the past two seasons and mas mined into lust one conference dual meet in the last two years. After losing their first non-conference match last season, the Hawks went 11-0 in the league and 13-1 overall.

Despite the high finish, Harrison failed to advance out of its tough Class B regional, which featured the top two teams in the state—Bloomfield Hills Andover and Hhomfield Hills Kingswood.

This season, the Hawks will compete on the Class A level. Goldstein believes the more will help Horrison's chances.

"It hurt (not getting past the regionals) because we knew we were better than some of the teams that did advance in Class A," Goldstein said, "I think we would have been in the top 10 in the state in Class

The Hawks lost only two doubles players, Jodie Whitehead and Alias Bambenek, only return a senior-filted team.

"We have seven seniors on this year's squad, and we have to win this year or clae," Goldstein said. "We can't wait until next year."

Returning as the first singles player is sophomore Stephanis Schwalm, who has improved, Goldstein said.

Schwarm, who has improved, other stein said.

"She has added a better serve.
She goes to the net and volleys well.
She can adapt her game to the type of game her opponent is playing. She played very well last year with the pressure of being a freshman."

The second doubles team will be the former third team of seniors Melissa Prendergast and Barb Ut-terbach. Goldstein predicts a good season for them.

The third doubles team will be senior Caroline Chubb and sophomore Jodie Barringer. Sophomores Destiny Laczkowski and Kristih Wolters are the fourth doubles.

"I would like us to three-peat and advance to the state (finals)," Goldstein said. "This potentially could be the strongest team I've ever had here."

FARMINGTON MERCY

In his cight years as Farmington Merry's coach, Jim Kerwin has learned to accept the word "good," but it's the word "champion" he wants to hear. Kerwin describes the Marlins as "a better than average team but not at the state (championship) level." Since 1984, Kerwin has coached winning teams that have fallen short of the next level.

The last time Mercy captured the Catholic League title was 1986 when they qualified for state. Since then, they have had good teams, including last year's 9'-4 squad which finished second, but have not been able to surpass Birmingham Martian.

"They are always the team to beat," said Kerwin, who's team is beat," and Kerwin, who is team is off to 2-0 start.

The Marlina lost eight seniors from to graduation, but their biggest loss is the trensfer of their top singles player from last season, Megagan Ledbetter.

Sophomore Kristen Kluska, the No. 2 player last season, will fill Ledbetter's spot. Freshman Amy Modica has emerged as the new No. 2 player. Sophomore Jackie Rajkawich and senior Peggy Mueller will be the third and fourth players, respectively.

Kerwin is relying on a pair of freshmen, Julie Zimmerman and Katie Emery, for his first doubles combination.

Sophomores Dana Fischioni and Anjali Thaker make the second doubles team, while juniors Michelle Uller and Dawn Green are the third due. Sophomore Susan Milas and sophomore Kristina Kudleo are the final doubles combination.

"We are as good as last year's team and actually we have more potential," Kerwin said. "It all depends on how well we come together."

Even though Mercy does have several young players, Kerwin isn't worried about a lack of experience. One reason is the Marlins participation in an eight-school junior varily tennia league.

"There is no question the JV team has helped our program," Kerwin said. "It's not like taking new kids once they come up to the varily. There are some good teams in the conference, and they supply good competition."

NORTH FARMINGTON

Three years ago, North Farming-ton won the WLAA. The next year, they struggled in what turned out to be a rebuilding year. The Raiders finished 10-4 in dual

The Raiders finished 10-4 in dual meets last year, fourth overall in the WLAA and wound up qualifying for the state finals after a strong showing in the regional. So what's the outlook for this year's team? "It will oil depend if we can get support from our doubles teams," conth Narm Stanistewski said. "Our doubles combinations are still our big question marks. If we can get some depth there, we may cause some trouble for some teams,"

North lost five seniors last year, including the first doubles team of Hadley Thuman and Jana Bockrath. Staniasewski considered them the most productive last year.

The first and second singles players return but will switch positions Junior Keely Jones will be in the No. 1 spot and senior Jennifer Reef the No. 2.

"Neety has improved from largery art," Staniszewski said. "Her serve is stronger, she is more experienced and she is hitting the ball harder than she did last season. Jennifer, who is a lethhander, is a consistent player. They are also good friends."

Sophomore Allison Walkon and junior Heather Stoneman will likely be the third and fourth singles players, respectively.

After that, there is a lung list of players fighting for the doubles spots. Juniors Renee Chou, Lindsay Livermore, Jennifer Irani, Jennifer Kosuttic, Emity Oches, Jennifer Pa-jewski, Brenda Cho, Kerl Krenttin and Dana Serling will all see some time.

Freshman Heather Cornwell and Amy Marks also will be in the dou-bles puzzle, Staniszewski said.

FARMINGTON

Preparation for each Farmington

Preparation for each Farmington match begins the previous night.

"The team gets together and had dinner at one of the glift houses," coach Brenda Payne anid. "They're a real close group. They cat together and make posters together. They have a lot of spirit."

Farmington will combine that spirit with youth and hope to improve on last season's 4.6 mark and ninth-place finish in the WLAA.

Four players are battling for the four singles apots, and any one can play any position.

The leading candidate is junior Sarah Burdi, a transfer from Livonia Stevenson. She played second singles for the Spertans.

Sophomore Julie Haight, who played third singles, also is fighting for a post elong with improved junior Laura McWilliam.

Payers is impressed by the player.

Payne is impressed by the play of freshman Beth Wilson. The left-hander has become one of the hardest hitters on the squad, and Payne expects her to be the top singles player within the next two years.

player within the next two years.

The Falcons only have two seniors on their roster, and both will make up the first doubles team.

Kirna Arora, who played first doubles last year, will be joined by Wendy Mitchalski.

Sophomores Devon Woodruff and Leslie Britt make up the second doubles team, juniors Leuren Tucker and Hollie Williams the third.

The fourth doubles position is The fourth doubles position is still open. Leading candidates are the teams of junior Deanna Heski and sophomore Erin Kenney, junior Amber Schoettle and freshman Kristen Zbanek. Freshman Koria Stopo and junior Amy Murphy will see time on the court.

"We should do well this season."
Payne said. "Other cuaches are scared of us for a change."
Payne, who was a doubles player at Farmington before graduating in 1980, thinks her ascould year of cuaching will be casier than her rookle season.

"Getting used to coaching was tough," admitted Payne. "Playing is easier than coaching."

Livonia fighters get help

That's what made this amateur boxing show at Livonin's Laurel Manon different than any other ever held in Michigan, according to Livonin Boxing Club Director Paul Soucy. Proceeds from the show went to the LBC's new gym

Those fans who were able to get their attention away from the blackjack tables saw some competitive fights on the eight-bout card. The LBC was well represented with six fighters, including Steve Bond and Scott Mattson, cousins from Garden City.

Bond improved his record to 5-1 as a 165-pounder with a second-round Technical Knockout of John Hart, a Livonia native fighting out of the Coleman Young Club in Detroit. The referee called the fight when Hart was having trouble keeping his balance after taking a standing eight count against the ropes.

Hart graduated in 1982 from Livonia Franklin where he was an all-league hasketball player. He took up boxing eight months ago and is 1-1 as an amateur.

"This keeps me in shape," said Hart, who works Manheim Auto Action in Flat Rock. "(Basketball) is behind me now, I try different things all the time."

Hart's lack of experience

"If I had to do it again I would have boxed more and stayed out-side and jabbed," said Hart, who played blockjack afterwards. "I stood right in front of him and I was an easy target."
