

Mediator summoned to aid OCC teacher contract talks

By RALPH R. BERTINAW

Like Gary Cooper in "High Noon," Oakland Community College faculty and administration contract negotiators are waiting for somebody to hit town.

Unlike Cooper though, who waited for the bad guys, the negotiators are hoping state mediator Chuck Jamerson of the Labor Department can bring them to a happy agreement, or at least an agreement.

Jamerson is scheduled to meet with both sides on Thursday, Sept. 24, and until then there probably won't be any negotiations, said Uni Suskind, president of the OCC Faculty Association. The last negotiation session, she added, was Sept. 2.

Without a contract since Aug. 31, the OCC teachers are currently working under the terms of their old contract.

Although a strike, technically called a "job action," is possible, it's not something the union is seriously considering right now. "We'll probably hope that there will be some negotiations before we even consider taking a job action," Suskind said.

Administration negotiator Ed Callaghan said he's "optimistic that it will be over soon."

The teachers rejected an administration contract offer Sept. 2, hence the call for a mediator.

The main issues seem to be salary, benefits and use of part-time teachers for whom the college provides no benefits.

The administration says that it needs part-time teachers to provide more flexibility. The union prefers to limit the number of part-timers so that full-time teachers can teach more classes if they want to and earn more money. Thirty-three percent of the OCC faculty is currently part-time, Suskind said.

An OCC teacher who requested anonymity said the administration "is dragging its feet" even though both sides "really aren't that far apart."

"If anything bad comes out of this, the administration is to be blamed. The faculty bargaining team is more interested in bargaining than the college."

The last OCC faculty walk-out was in 1971 and lasted less than a week.

Teacher pay currently starts at $20,000 for beginners and tops out at more than $55,000 for those who teach a normal class load.

You know what's more addictive than food? The feeling of success.

Weight Watchers showed me how to eat right and feel great!

Food was always on my mind. All morning I'd think about lunch. Before bed, I'd want just one more snack. I tried controlling it on my own, but nothing worked.

Then I joined Weight Watchers.

Every step of the way, they gave me the support and encouragement I needed to succeed. But best of all, they gave me a plan I could live with. Now I know how to survive stressful days, eating out, and parties, all without giving up my favorite foods.

I've learned how to eat right, and I feel really great. Since joining Weight Watchers, this is the best I've ever looked. The only thing I crave now is more success.
