Nearly 400 adults and children enjoyed farm-fresh fun at the recent Children's Hospice Benefit at Upland Hills Farm in Oxford. The event was sponsored by the Hospice of Southeastern Michigan Council, with support from Incomp and R.L. Polk & Co. It harvested $20,000 for children's hospice programs.

Pony rides, a moonwalk, a petting farm, games and Karaoke singing were but a few of the activities planned by Joyce Incomp and Nadene Schultz's committee. Among the youngsters spotted enjoying same were Joshua and Lauren Topas; Danis, Evan, Blake and Jaron Incomp, and Stacey and Ashley Leullette.

Council president Bev Moore's husband Tom towed the crowd with his vocal rendition of "Danny Boy." During the auction which followed, Rick Incomp was the winning bidder for a miniature Volvo line sportscar donated by Melissa and Tony Franco. Joe and Jane Muer won a Nintendo Gameboy donated by the Marvin Moseses and Kevin Counihans.

Hob Noble Gobble

That big balloon parked in front of Gary and Rita Wasserman's Birmingham home Oct. 1 reportedly delighted the neighborhood children. It also welcomed Michigan Thanksgiving Parade leaders to a dinner meeting.

Guests included Rosanne and Sandy (Parade Foundation president) Duncan, Marlene and Paul (immediate past president) Borman, Bill and Sigurd Kust, Joe and Kathy Antonini, Parade Co. president Kirk Hendrix, special events director Susie Gross, Dick and Linda (parade chairwoman) Kughn who came from Dearborn and Don and Dale Austin who came from Grosse Pointe. The Antoninis, Kughnas, Kasta and Wassermans are co-chairing Hob Noble Gobble, the black tie parade review, Wednesday, Nov. 25, at Cobo Center in Detroit.

Over cocktails, conversation centered on the successful F&M Rubber Duck Race that generated the necessary funds to construct the famous Doodiebug float. Guests also viewed a new parade video, which features "It's a Parade." The song was written and donated to the Parade Co. by Dan Yessian. "We even have the copyright," said Gross.

Gary, who is special events chairman for the foundation, had some news regarding the preview party. He noted that the indoor carnival rides will operate continuously all evening and that the dinner/dance/show will not be broadcasted for television as it was last year. Another party attraction for the young set will be the early arrival of Santa Claus.

Invitations for Hob Noble Gobble, a parade fund-raiser for all ages, will soon be in the mail. To get one, call Gross at the Parade Co. (923-7400).

Short 'n' sweet

As all University of Michigan alumni are well aware, the university has launched a fundraising campaign with the highest goal ever attempted by a public university - $850 million. The College of Engineering has pledged to raise $80 million of that and Bob Vlasic, class of '49, is honorary chairman of the College of Engineering's Design for Impact Campaign. Vlasic led a toast to the campaign's success during the recent announcement party at Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn. He shared the podium with former astronaut James McDivitt, who is chairing the campaign. McDivitt announced that generous contributions from Vlasic, Jane and John Grettenberger, GM, Ford, Michigan Bell and others have already totaled more than $30 million.

Bert and Terry Treiber recently hosted a reception in their Bloomfield Village home to honor Bloomfield attorney Milt Zuss-
