BLOATING AND DISTENTION:
A Distressful Abdominal Complaint

Many people attribute bloating and distention to excessive bowel gas which is not necessarily the case. These individuals are suffering from a variation of the Irritable Bowel Syndrome that affects primarily the small bowel which gives them the sense of overdistention.

The evaluation required for the patient with bloating and distention is dependent on a number of factors including age and duration of the problem. Organic disease of the gut - particularly carcinoma of the colon and Crohn's disease - can be present with bloating and distention and these conditions should be ruled out.

Treatment of the bloating patient usually is not curative and the most important component of therapy is psychological rather than physical. Simple assurance and explanation lead to dramatic improvement in most cases.

What Should A Program
For Gifted Children Offer?

Gifted children have needs that go beyond what can be offered in a regular classroom setting, where instruction often is paced so slowly that the bright student becomes bored and discouraged. And where, at times, the gifted child's need for in-depth learning is neglected. What, then, should a gifted program offer to address the specific needs of bright students?

- Freedom to be creative
- Small class size
- Experiential learning
- Opportunity to see learning applied to life outside the classroom
- Permission to enjoy learning

All gifted education programs, whether in public or private schools, should have these basic features. If you would like more information on Gifted Education, Gibson School's Gifted Program for 4-13 year olds, or the Gibson School Lecture and Discussion Series (GLAD), please call or write:

So the next time someone who works for you needs time off for Guard and Reserve duty, please give your full support. And let the obstacle course begin at annual training.
