First Male Gets Madonna Degree

By R. T. THOMPSON

"We all have lists of priorities, and usually they happen to include whatever subject has been preoccupying us lately," Sen. Philip Hart told the 94 graduates of Madonna College in the highspot of the annual commencement exercises.

Sen. Hart (D-Mich.) was the principal speaker and gave his address after he became the first male to receive a degree from the college. He was presented an honorary doctor of humanities degree by Mother Mary Angelica, of the Felician Sisters Order, and Sister Mary Danatha, Madonna College president.

Sen. Hart was introduced by Madonna Trustee Jacob J. Simmons III.

"UNHAPPILY, none of these priorities happen to be the really fundamental problems facing this nation," Sen. Hart said, "in fact facing every nation in the world."

"The really fundamental problems are: control of population, control of technology, control of arms, and control of racism and the dismantling of racist structures."

"I doubt if there is a man in Washington, or in any national capital, who would not agree that these items represent the key problems of the day. And, under the influence of truth serum, they would agree that no one really knows how to deal with them."

"Moreover, they would probably agree that they don't even know how to keep those really fundamental problems at the very top of everyone's priority list."

HE CONTINUED, "No amount of revenue sharing, or reorganization of federal bureaucracies, or wage and price guidelines, or political campaign reform is going to save us from disaster if the nation continues to grow, in the words of the Kerner Commission, toward 'two societies, one white and one black, separate and unequal.'"

"What kind of a society are all of our grandchildren likely to live in if the ghetto and its degradations remain intact with an increasingly hostile band inside and an increasingly defensive, and probably repressive, majority on the outside?"

"If the nations of the world cannot control their populations, then no amount of fiddling with budgets and welfare plans is going to bend off east where there are too many people and too few resources."

"Even if population control is attained, the major nations will never have the cash to adequately deal with social and economic problems if huge slices of national incomes must go into arms manufacture."

"WITHOUT BETTER control of technology and industry, we have little hope of maintaining the world environment at even the present level. Nor do we have much chance of heading off an Orwellian society where privacy is virtually unknown and all power is in the hands of the people who run the computers."

"To solve these fundamental problems, the world must first convince itself of its urgency. The United Nations, though a failure as a mediator, might find an important new role as an educator. It might well prove the agency to make us all start thinking about common essentials."

The 94 candidates for degrees were presented by Sister Mary Lauriana, Madonna dean, with Sister Mary Danatha conferring degrees.

Presentation of degrees was by Bishop Thomas J. Gumbleton, DD, auxiliary bishop of Detroit.
