LAW AND OR

Excerpts from a speech by EMIL MAZEY, UAW Secretary-Treasures

Looking for scapegoats is an old custom especially during an election year. The so-called "law, and order" campaign issue provides an excellent example of that.

Both Richard Nixon, the Republican candidate, and George Wallace, the ultra-conservative candidate, offer a seemingly simple solution. They are saying to the electorate: "Elect me President and I will end crime in the streets."

First of all, street crimes are a matter for state and local authorities, and neither Nixon nor Wallace have said just how they would or could involve the federal government to make our streets "safe."

PROMISE VS. PERFORMANCE

But having made the promise, these candidates—or their parties—leave themselves open to judgment on their past performance on this very issue.

The states of New York, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, California and Wisconsin have Republican governors. They have also ex-perienced increases in their crime rate. The city of New York is governed by a Republican mayor. It too has suffered from an increase crime during that mayor's tenure.

It would be grossly unfair to blame these Republican office holders for that crime rate —just as it is unfair to blame it on the pres-ent Administration in Washington.

NIXON, TELL YOUR FRIENDS!

But if Nixon has a solution to this prob-lem, he ought to give it to his Republican colleagues now holding office on the state and local level.

THE WALLACE RECORD

Wallace has even less to brag about when it comes to fighting crime.

Birmingham, the largest city in Alabama, has 12:2 murders per 100,000 population, according to the latest FBI Report, cumpared to a rate of 7.7 murders in Washington, a city Wallace holds up as an example of a "crime-infested city." And the national average is 5.6, less than half the Birmingham rate.

The rate of murder for the entire state of Alabama is THE HIGHEST of any state in the nation. Alabama's rate of aggravated assaults (muggings, beatings, etc.) is the fourth highest in the country.

Alabama is also the state where four young girls were killed in church by a bomb, and those who did it were never tracked down by Wallace's "crime fighters."

This is the state George Wallace has controlled for quite a few years. How can he now tell people in Michigan and elsewhere that he has the solution to the problem of crime?

CRIME'S CAUSES

Poverty, unemployment, discrimination, poor housing, lack of medical care and inadequate educational opportunities contribute to increasing crime. However, crime is also increasing in the affluent sector of our society. Many youths from well-lo-do suburban families are involved in more crimes than ever before.

HUMPHREY: BEST BET

Vice President Hubert Humphrey knows how to establish law and order with justice in our country.

As a Senator, he supported housing legislation to wipe out slums; he supported Medicare to improve the health status of older people and to take the financial burden of such bills off the backs of younger people; he supported minimum wage legislation to raise the living standards of people at the bottom of the economic ladder; he supported legislation to give poor children the opportunity for a decent education.

HUBERT HUMPHREY HAS SPONSORED AND SUPPORTED LEGISLATION TO HELP SOLVE SOME OF THE PROBLEMS IN OUR SOCIETY THAT ARE THE ROOT CAUSES

Crime will not be solved by easy answers or phony promises. I hope no American will be fooled by the easy-answer boys.
