Horse show finale

The two-week Motor City and Detroit Horse Shows culminated in the North American Grand Prix on Saturday evening at the Bloomfield Open Hunt club in Bloomfield Hills. First, the black tie buffet supper in the boxes and tent found people talking about the same night in 1992 when it was so cold guests wore fur coats.

BOH president Richard Bone and his wife, Jackie, had their family present, their daughter Karl, son Rick and merry daughter Dana and her husband, Glenn Shagena.

In chatting with horse-show co-chairman and co-chairwoman Art and Carol Zaske, Art observed, "BOH is so approachable... it's a true family club. There's tennis, swimming, riding, skeet and our social events. We have 215 children under 11 years, many in the special programs."

More than $20,000 was raised through the concept of having people get votes by the amount of money their friends and family sent in for them. Kolon's brother died of leukemia at a young age, and Kolon was supported strongly by friends in the contest.
