SUBURBAN LIFE

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1993

Brilliant night is shaping up

Gretchen Hitch at 645 Kimberly, Birmingham 48008, or you cay call her at 646-5277.

In ans are going forward for the Juvenile Dinbetes Foundation's Evening of Brilliance set for Saturday, Oct. 30, at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn, Gov. John Engler has accepted the invitation to be the guest of honor.

Co-chairwomen are Lorroine Schultz and Judie Sherman. Honorary chairmen and chairwomen are Tom and Bev Moore, Doug and Sydell Schubot, and John and Judy Lore. The byword is "Be an angel on Devil's Night." Mel Ball will present a half hour of show tunes.

The Schubots are giving a treasure chest, the key to be won at the Evening of Brilliance. Wachler Jewelry is using a window to promote the event and is giving at ticket to myone buying a diamond ring.

The Wachler window ties in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," playing at the Birmingham Theatre, in which Stella Parton as Lorelei Lee sings. "Diamonds are a Gir's Best Friend."

Tiffany's will be the scene for the benefactor party Wednesday, Oct. 13. Some women on the committee are feloen Wachler, Irnen Bader, Diann Howard, Marie Brigstock, Annette Kolon, Georgiann Krullk, Estelle Ellus, Marilyn Connor, Linda Howting, Carole Wendzel, Rosonne Duncan, Sally Victor, Teckla Rhodes, Julie Weyand, Pam Rock, Cheryl Hall and Janice Cherkasky,

In discussing diabetea, Dr. Yunn Silva explained, "Dinbetes is ubiquitous (it cana attack every part of the body), affecting millions of Americans. It must be considered the leading primary cause of multiple organ deterioration, leading to severe morbidity and to mortality."

More Angels

These "angels" are not to be confused with the heavenly Angel Gala set for the Ritz-Carlton on Saturday, Oct. 16, for the Michigan Canner Poundation. The Angel Gala was started by Helen Zukerman.

This will be the eighth Angels Gala. The function has raised $1.3 million for research.

Saturacy, Oct. 16, for the Minegan Canter Foundation. The Angel Gala was started by Helen Zukerman.
This will be the eighth Angels Gala. The function has raised $1.3 million for research.
Zukerman said, "With the support of the Angels, MCF scientists identified a cloned receptor for a protein which causes colle to move. Current work is going on using this receptor to develop a new, easior disgnostic test for bladder cancer."
The evening features Pierre Fracalanza in "Just Pierre," a multimedia musical presentation.
According to Fracalanza, it is, "A marriage of acoustics and electronics, providing listeners with a glimpse of music of the future." Tekets are $2,000 per couple.
Evening with Interlochen

Evening with Interlochen

Evening with Interlochen

Interlochen Center for the Artsenjoyed a multistore fashion show after buffet and cocktails
Saturday night at the Somerest Collection in Troy.
Following the fashion show, called "What's in Store" with incredibly slim (thin) models, a collage performance was presented by Interlochen students, faculty and alumni.
On the honorary chairmen and chairwomen lineup and in attendance were Alan and Marianne Schwartz, financial planner Isabel
Smith and her husband Lawrence Smith,
James Tolley, Charlotte Roe and Woodward
Iowe, Other areaites we spotted in the throng were Tom and Laurie Cunnington, the Philip Handlennan, Dorothy Dunitz, Alice Handesians, Drothy Dunitz, Alice Handesians, Lloyd Reuss, Warren Goodell, Rob
and Betty Bright, Charlio and Jo Kessler, Saks

See The Scene, 3C

Interlochen Night: Supporters Warren Goodell and Isabelle Smith smile at turnout at the Somerset Collection in Follow me: Myrna Partrich (front, left) leads class in aerobics at the Workout Co. The exercise studio run by Partrich and partner Barbara Schiff has 32 teachers and is open seven days a week.

What a workout

Area exercise studio remains a leader

Aerobics, step classes, even Muscle Madness and yoga keep clientele moving to the beat of good health at the Workout Co., which two area women opened 13 years ago. Their Bloomfield Township studio has been called one of the best in the country.

BY ETHEL SIMMONS

The Workout Co, in Bloomfield Township has survived the craze of the '80s when the baby boomers were younger and exercise studios proliferated.

proliferated.
One reason for the top-rated studio's longevity is its scientific approach to aerobic and other kinds of exercise. Also, the friendly attitude of the studio keeps women, men and young people over the age of 12 coming back.

Bestones Number Deptsich of

of 12 coming back.
Partners Myrine Partrich of Bloomfield Hills and Barbara Schiff of Bloomfield Township outlined some of the studio's assets during an interview one recent morning at the Gallery restaurant in the Bloomfield
Plaza shopping mall, where the Workout Co. is located.
In keeping with their healthy approach to living, Schiff ordered attmeal and Partrich chose the restaurant's pita bread that is toasted and topped with Parmesan cheese. "I can eat a lot," said Partrich as she munched on the low calorie snack. Exercising keeps the petite Partrich (just under 5 feet tall) in trim. Schiff is 5 feet 4 and looks in great shape, although she watches it too. "Don't ask my weight," she said. Keep close watch

With acrobics as the heart of the studio, Schiff explained how they watch over their clients. "From the beginning, we knew you shouldn't bounce and stretch. We were looking at the scientific end of the business. not just the creative. Jane Fonda was still bouncing stretches on tape and we knew we shouldn't."

Partrich stressed another element, "What people feel comfortable with." Some studios may have a cer-tain style but, "Wo're not cool. We want to be friendly. Most people are a little intimidated by what they st see." she said.

When the studio began, Partrich and Schiff each taught 15 classes a Bodles beautiful: Instructor Carol Joliet energizes the group, calling out rhythmically as she demonstrates.

week. The partners still teach six to eight classes, although instructors now include 32 women and men. "We're a family unit together," Partrich said. "Our teachers are not

Readers of the Observer & Eccentric already may know the two women from the individual columns they write for the newspaper. Schiff,

Personals ad leads couple to a wedding

BY ETHEL SIMMONS

STATE WATER

A divorced, 47-year-old male executive in Farmington Hills who had been putting all his energies into his work decided in January "to take stock" of his life.

He placed an offbeat ad in the "Personal Scene" ads of the Observer & Eccentric, hoping to meet some interesting women to date. The ads are scheduled to run an entire month, but after the adappeared just once, on a Monday, and he talked to the first woman who responded, his said, "Whoal" He already knew that this could be the start of something big.

"By Thursday, I called the paper to have the adpulled," said Jim Nelson, who was beaming happily, in the Birmingham home of his new bride, Linda, whom he married just a few weeks ago in Las Vegas.

Contented couple: At home in Birmingham, newlyweds Jim Nelson and Carol Waters Nelson describe how they met through the personals ads in the Observer & Eccentric. We thought it was important to do this article because there are a lot of lonely people," Jim said.