EMPSON AND GRAHAM WIN CAUCUS CONTESTS

he believed "the west side of the township was entitled to the office," and that "one reason for the progressive spirit of the township has been because the offices have been divided and all parts of the township satisfied." He recalled that "the east side of the township has had the supervisor for ten years, the clerk for two or three years, the treasurer for two years, and the commissioner of highways for two or three years, while the west side has had one justice of the peace and one member of the board of review."
In addition to Bachelor being named as Empson's opponent, George W. Cottle nominated John McQuigan.

Justices Chosen
Chairman McCracken stated that regarding justices of the peace. The term of Charles Heise, a short term, expires, while another vacancy occurs for a long term. Mr. McCracken, who has been filling out a term, stated that he would not accept the nomination for the long term, but would, in order to finish work on the Grand River widening and the Farmington Drain, in which he has been assisting, accept the office for the short term. He was nominated by acclamation, and Arthur Coe was chosen for the long term by acclamation, after Charles Heise, George Nacker and William Kenyon had emphatically refused.

Don Button was chosen to succeed himself on the board of review.

In the vote of the sections for road overseer, one contest developed, in district No. 2, Albert Ferguson being nominated in opposition to Frank Cox, present overseer. Ferguson won, 23 to 17. Charles Graylin was renominated in district No. 1, Clayton Goers in district No. 4 and Louis Fendt was chosen to succeed Joseph Graham in district No. 3. Fred Menke, Frank Cox, Elmer Empson and George Leet were chosen constables. Harry McCracken was named chairman of the township committee, with the privilege of choosing two to assist him.

SAYS 'CHURCH IS AT START OF NEW EPOCH'

ceremonies, was frequently supplanting the minister.
To continue, we note that in the matter of burial, many who, during life, have been absolutely out of touch with the church, giving it no thought or even financial assistance while living, and under the circumstances not being able to object, do at the last, by force of custom, receive from the church as a charity the benefit of its final rite, this being their only contact with it.
Still others contribute to its support, often generously, but for some reason, perhaps known only to themselves, do not consider it of sufficient importance to give it their personal interest and assistance.

The idea is prevalent also, that the educated youth of the land are rebelling against the old theology, and are alienated from the organized church.

And the present age is, without doubt, a period of great religious disturbance.
The revelations of science, a broader and deeper general knowledge, have modified not a little our theological opinions, our conception of God, the universe and man's relation to it.

Our various conceptions range from the most crude to the most metaphysical according to our open-mindedness, the breadth of our reading, our educational training and our intellectual capacity.

The greater the extent of our knowledge the less cocksure we are of our previous conceptions. Theologians, perhaps, more than the rest of us are trying to find themselves in the changing order.

In the midst of this theological upheaval, what will become of the church? Is it meeting the new conditions, adjusting itself to the new order or has it arrived at the stage of senility, soon to go the way of all flesh. There are some who incline to this opinion.

With full realization of its shortcomings, its weaknesses, its ultra-conservatism, its failure to measure up to the highest ideals of its founder, it is in our opinion, not too much to say that it is today, and it is destined to be, the most active and virile organization for the promotion of the highest development and greatest happiness of humanity and it is the surest preventive for the decadence of civilization now, so frequently predicted.

The Church, more than any other organization, has improved the ethics, the morals and the ideals of mankind.

It has done this by nearly twenty centuries of constant continuous teaching in school, pulpit and press, of the principles embodied in the Sermon on the Mount.

But for the Church merely to set forth the ideals of love, justice, forgiveness, righteousness, etc., is not enough. For, as some one has said "Ideals are not challenged or applied if they are not embodied in concrete proposals for specific situations."

We believe the Church has reached the beginning of a new epoch, and will henceforth, more and more embody its ideals in concrete proposals looking to a

ESTIMATE OF $47,000 ON RIGHT-OF-WAY GIVEN

that if the Highway Committee were not certain of its purpose or desire in reference to the project, it would not be recommended.

In order to clear up any possible misunderstanding in regard to the portions of Grand River to which the estimate of $47,000 applies, P. J. Reynolds, who was in Farmington recently and co-operated with Supervisor Isaac Bond, Mayor Wells D. Butterfield, and Justice of the Peace Harry McCracken in preparing an estimate, was asked about the matter.

Mr. Reynolds said that the $47,000 estimate applied to the frontage from Farmington Junction to the lumber yard, inasmuch as "we have had for some time an appropriation for the widening as far as the Junction." The words "junction cut-off" and the name "Farmington Junction" appear to have caused some confusion.

Would Act Quickly
Asked as to the probable procedure henceforth, Mr. Reynolds said that as soon as the Highway Committee passed the appropriation, State representatives would begin work in Farmington at once, completing agreements and releases. "We could have men there within two weeks," Mr. Reynolds said.

Asked whether he thought there might be any serious difficulty to prevent the widening, Mr. Reynolds said that he believed the $47,000 appropriation may be passed without trouble and the project carried through, if the estimate does not prove far out of the way. Should the expense be greatly increased, however, or much more than anticipated, there might be some hesitation on the part of the State, he indicated.

So far as could be learned, the State officials regard $47,000 as reasonable, and that it would be a good investment to widen Grand River to 120 feet at that cost for the right-of-way.

Mr. Reynolds declined to give an opinion as to when construction may be expected to start if the appropriation is passed.

Supervisor Bond, Mayor Butterfield, and Mr. McCracken attended the Administrative Board meeting in Lansing Monday. On request of the Farmington men, Commissioner Rogers made special note to other members of the Administrative Board that the Grand River widening project was included in these submissions.

more Christian state of society, and will make itself felt, in no uncertain manner, in an attempt to realize its ideals and to remedy the evils that result from our complex civilization.

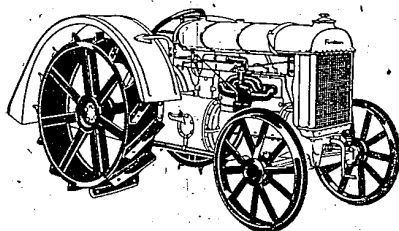

In two or three subsequent articles an attempt will be made to show the reasons for this belief.
