EXECUTIVE PROCLAMATION

Public safety is a foremost American problem. Saving of human life is Government's chief business. The forces of progress and of humanity in the State are seeking to check the prevailing waste of life and resources due to traffic accidents on streets and highways. There is a great need of more uniform public understanding and official administration of the traffic laws. Inter-city motor vehicle transportation tends to increase hazards in any locality unless all localities experience generally similar and equally regular safety education and statutory administration. To help effect this, a state-wide traffic safety movement will be conducted during the month of May and June of this year. I sincerely believe that the people in all Michigan will give it their earnest and active support.

The question of safety in the public thoroughfares of the State is not debatable. Assurance of reasonable security to all is a public and private obligation. The State can do no less than give of its strength to such an enterprise. It is our duty to re-assert the supreme character of the law. Government is not the responsibility of the few, but of the many—and in issuing this I am endeavoring to call into action, for public safety, the man-power and woman-power of the entire commonwealth.

Given under my hand and the seal of the State, at the Capitol, in Lansing, this 17th day of May, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Twenty-eight and of the Commonwealth of Michigan, the Ninety-second. (Seal)

FRED W. GREEN, Governor.
