COMPLETES SURVEY OF WALLED LAKE VILLAGE

Miss Margaret Cawood of the Michigan State College was in Walled Lake this week completing the survey which has been made in Walled Lake along with a number of other small towns in Michigan.

Each organization here has given a report at the meeting held; the number of persons present whose residence is in the country; the place of each meeting; the sort of a program, whether food is served, the name of the speaker if any, and anything else of importance which happens. This survey was started last September and has continued for a year.

The Wood Thrush

The wood thrush is the handsomest species of this family. In grace and elegance of manner he has no equal. Such a gentle highbred air, and such intangible ease and composure in his flight and movement! He is a poet in very word and deed. His carriage is music to the eye. His performance of the commonest act, as catching a beetle, or picking a worm from the weed, places one like a stroke of wit or eloquence. Was he a prince in the olden times, and do the regal grace and mien still adhere to him in his transformation?—John Burroughs.

Demand for Oxygen Grows

The demand for liquid oxygen since it was first made in this country in 1897 has grown enormous, and there are now in the United States 150 oxygen manufacturing plants, not to mention the 500 and more warehouses and distributing stations. In 1909, the output of liquid oxygen amounted to 3,314,000 cubic feet. Sixteen years later, in 1925, it reached 2,073,826,000 cubic feet. It is an interesting fact that the cost of production within that interval was reduced from 47 to 10 cents per cubic foot—Washington Star.

Fame

"You ought to go and see that film dear. It's wonderful."
 "All right, I'll go tomorrow night."
 "Well, it's something-or-other about love, and—"
 "Who are the stars?"
 "Well, the man is Richard What's-his-name, and the heroine is—oh, you know, the tall blond that was divorced last winter from that—oh, that comedian, you know. That is, maybe he isn't a comedian, but you know the one I mean."—Kansas City Star.

Sold

"How much is that dining-room suite?"
 "Two hundred pounds."
 "Have you sold many?"
 "Yes, I have sold a hundred of them this year. May I look your order?"
 "No, I have come from the tax collector to see how business was."—Lustige Kolner Zeitung (Cologne).

The stranger in our fair land is entitled to be told that "Rink Go" is the headline writer's shorthand for hockey contest.

In 1895 the United States had 285,400 telephones, while Germany had 115,007 and Great Britain had only 73,333 telephones.

As You Like It

IF THE things which make a house a home, not the least is the small electrical convenience outlet that permits you to "plug in" a lamp or an appliance just where and as you like it—no unscrewing of lamp bulbs, no dangling cords from lamp sockets to trip your steps or disturb your temper.

An outlet costs very little—it adds to comfort very much. Why not consult an electrical contractor about this matter. Or, let us advise you.
